PREFACE

In this book is given the legends which show that the McNairs are a division of the MacFarlane clan and that their home was on the borders of Loch Lomond, Scotland. It is also shown that the name Macnayr has been found on documents as early as 1390 and that a coat-of-arms was given by King Robert Bruce to a chieftain of the McNairs at the Battle of Bannockburn in 1314.

All the McNair, McNear, and McNeir genealogies obtainable have been collected in their more or less complete forms. Those in the United States have been arranged as far as possible under the states in which the head of the family resided at the time of the first census in 1790. In order to show the distribution of McNairs in the United States at that time, that part of the census of 1790 which deals with McNairs is included.

It is hoped that a later edition can be published which will contain more information about the McNairs and McNair genealogies.

I wish to express my grateful appreciation to those many members of the clan whose assistance has made this work possible, as well as to Mr. Albert C. McFarland and Miss Mary D. Alexander, of the University of Chicago Press, for careful editing of the manuscript.

THE CLAN MacFARLANE OF WHICH THE
McNAIRS MAY BE A DIVISION

THE CLAN MACFARLANE OF WHICH THE MCNAIRS MAY BE A DIVISION*

Concerning the origin of the earls of Lennox there is much uncertainty. William Skene, in his Highlanders of Scotland, tells us that during the lifetime of David I the earldom formed a part of the principality of Cumbria, and claims that the family of Lennox, before they acquired the earldom, were hereditary seneschals of Stratherne and baillies of the abthainrie (or abbacy) of Dull in Atholl.

We have the account of Peter Walsh, in his Animadversions on the History of Ireland, who derives their descent from Mainus, son of the Irish king of Leinster, and Mungenia, daughter of Fincormachus, king of Scotland. William Buchanan, of Auchmar, considers this account "too fabulous to deserve any credit," and continues, "Our own antiquaries with far greater probability, which is also confirmed by a constant and inviolable tradition, derive the origin of this ancient family from Aluin, or Alcuin, a younger son of Kenneth III, king of Scotland, who died in the year 994."

However this may be, we find that all historians agree in believing that a certain earl of Lennox, also named Aluin, had two sons, Malduin, or Maldowen, heir to the earldom, and Gilchrist, ancestor of the MacFarlanes. About the year 1200 Gilchrist obtained from his elder brother a grant of certain lands of Arrochar. The charter from Maldowen, earl of Lennox, to his brother Gilchrist, is still preserved, and the lands, at all times the principal seat of the MacFarlane clan, continued in their possession for six hundred years.

Arrochar is a beautiful district at the head of Loch Lomond, situated not many miles distant from the city of Glasgow. Buchanan, writing in 1775, says:

The laird of MacFarlane had a very good old castle in an island of Lochlomond, called Island-Rowglas, which was burnt by the English during Cromwell's usurpation, and never since repaired. He had also another pretty good house and gardens in an island of the same loch, called Island-Vow. But his principal residence is at Inverloch or New Tarbet, which is a handsome house beautified with pleasant gardens, situated in the paroch of Arrochar and shire of Dumbarton near the head of that large loch or arm of the sea called Loch-Long, where there is excellent fishing for herring, and all other sorts of sea-fish.

Gilchrist left issue a son Duncan, called in old charters "Duncan filius Gilchrist," or "MacGilchrist," and to this Duncan was given a charter by Malcolm, then earl of Lennox, confirming the grant of the lands of Arrochar. Duncan married his cousin Matilda, daughter to the earl of Lennox, and their son was named Malduin or Maldonich.

Malduin's son and successor was named Partholan, or Parlan (Gaelic for Bartholomew), from whose name the family assumed the patronymical surname of MacPharlan. The three generations before this had been known as MacGilchrist, from Gilchrist, brother of Malduin.

To Partholan succeeded his son Malcolm, who was in turn succeeded by his son Duncan, sixth laird of MacFarlane. Soon after the death of Duncan the ancient line of the earls of Lennox became extinct at the death in 1460 of Isabella, countess of Lennox, whose aged father had been beheaded by James I, king of Scotland.

Three families thereupon laid claim to the honors and titles of the earldom of Lennox, the MacFarlanes claiming them as heirs male, and offering powerful resistance to the claims of the Stewarts of Darnley, who were descended from a female branch of the Lennox family. The stout resistance of the MacFarlanes was all to no purpose, however, and appears to have resulted in the almost total destruction of the clan, the chief and his family falling in defense of the cause, and many being scattered abroad for refuge to distant parts of the kingdom. At this juncture the ruin of the clan was happily prevented by the support given by one of its houses to the Darnley family, whereupon its head, Andrew MacFarlane, married the daughter of John Stewart, lord of Darnley and earl of Lennox, and was put in possession of most of their former property.

Hereafter the MacFarlanes appear to have been loyal supporters of the lowland earls of Lennox. Little is known of the clan for several generations, and they seem to have enjoyed a period of prosperity, protected in the possession of their ancient property by the powerful earls whose standard they followed. In the sixteenth century Duncan MacFarlane of that ilk is frequently mentioned as an adherent of Mathew, earl of Lennox. He was present with the earls of Lennox and Glencairn and three hundred of his followers at the disastrous battle of Glasgow Muir in the year 1544, and shared in the ruin and forfeiture which followed. Owing to the intercession of friends, however, he was restored and granted a remission under the privy seal. The earl of Lennox set off for England, and, having married a niece of Henry VIII, soon after returned reinforced with some English troops. Duncan dared not join him in person, but sent a relative, Walter MacFarlane of Tarbet, with a force of four hundred men. Holinshed says: "In these exploytes the erle had with him Walter MacFarlane, of Tarbet, and seven score of men of the head of Lennox, that spake the Irishe and the English Scottish tongues, light footmen, well armed in shirtes of mayle, with bows and two-handed swords."

Duncan was one of the first of much consequence to make open profession of the Christian religion in the kingdom. He is reported to have been slain, with many of his clan, at the battle of Pinkey in September, 1547. Duncan's son Andrew took an active part in the civil wars of the time, and ranged himself on the side of the regent, James, earl of Murray, half-brother to Mary, Queen of Scots. In this respect his conduct differed from that of almost all the highland chiefs, who warmly espoused the cause of Queen Mary. At the battle of Langside, in May, 1568, he behaved so valiantly with five hundred of his own name and dependents, that they were acknowledged by all to be the chief cause of the victory. The clan took in this battle three of Queen Mary's standards, which were long preserved in the family. The regent bestowed upon the MacFarlanes, among other rewards, their honorable crest and motto, viz., a demi-savage proper, holding in his dexter hand a sheaf of arrows, and pointing with his sinister to an imperial crown, or. Motto: "This I'll defend."

In 1587 Andrew MacFarlane of Arrochar appears in the roll of landlords, who were made by Parliament responsible for their clans. In 1594 the MacFarlanes were denounced as robbers and oppressors, and in 1604 the old standing feud between them and the Colquhouns culminated in the slaughter of the Laird of Luss, Sir Humphrey Colquhoun, by the chief of the clan MacFarlane. In 1608 they were declared rebels by law. This did not prevent their following Montrose in 1644-45, and their wild pibroch, "Hoggil-nam-Bo," was heard in many of his battles. At Bothwell Bridge, in 1679, they were among the foremost in charging the gateway through which the guards charged. In 1745 they fought gallantly for "Prince Charlie."

In the time of the last chief of the clan MacFarlane who was laird of Arrochar . . . war broke out between America and Great Britain. MacFarlane was heavily taxed and was also deeply in debt. His family had been reared in luxury. Gambling with cards was then considered respectable. He entertained with a princely hospitality that the revenues of the estate could not support. He sold an estate that he owned in Jamaica for £8000, but could not avert the threatened ruin, and in 1784 . . . the barony of Arrochar, which for six hundred years had been in the possession of the MacFarlanes, passed into the hands of strangers.

The illustrations of Robert Ronald McIan give the coat-of-arms of this family . . . and above the device, the name as MacPharlan. In the next paragraph he writes the name MacFarlane. Browne, in his History of the Highlands, uses the name MacPharlan and MacFarlane. Sir Walter Scott spells the name MacFarlane, in Waverly, and in the introduction to Rob Roy. In Cadyow Castle he speaks of the "wild MacFarlane's plaided clan."*

The armorial bearings of the MacFarlanes are: argent, a saltier engrailed, cantoned with four roses, gules, this being the arms of the old family of Lennox. The supporters (marks of nobility, allowed by the courtesy of Scotland to all chiefs of clans) are two Highlanders dressed in belted plaids of appropriate tartan, with drawn swords and bows proper. Crest, a demi-savage holding a sheaf of arrows in his dexter hand, and pointing with his sinister to an imperial crown, or. Motto: "This I'll defend," and on a compartment "Loch Sloidh."

* These three extracts are from Mrs. C. M. Little, History of the Clan MacFarlane.

MACFARLANE ARMS, A.D. 1568

The suaicheantas, or badge, is muilleag, cranberry bush. . . . The cath-ghairm, war-cry, or battle shout, is "Loch Sloidh" pronounced sloy, the lake of the host, the plain along its bank being the place of rendezvous for the clan previous to an expedition.*

The brilliant MacFarlane tartan is red, green, black, and white, red greatly predominating. Clothed in such a garb, we may well believe that when "MacFarlane stepped forth in the bloom of his vigor, his sons marched behind like a bright ridge of flame."

THE MACFARLANES GATHERING†

Send the fiery cross swift o'er the dark glens and fountains,
Kindle the beacon on dreary Ross-Dhu;
Let hundreds blaze high on the Arrochar mountains,
The flowers of Macfarlane will soon be in view.

Bid the pibroch sound bravely through gloomy Glenfruin,
Though Macgregor be backed by the proud "Sider Roy";
He marches to battle, he marches to ruin;
We'll welcome him there with the shout of "Loch Sloy."

When the clan is insulted—for honor's their darling—
They will die on the heath if they cannot prevail;
For never a clan like the clan of Macfarlane
Trod the Glen of the Saxon, or hill of the Gael.

When round by the side of Benlomond they're wending,
Their proud, stately march fills the bosom with joy;
While the pibroch its wild stormy measure is blending,
With "This I'll defend," and the shout of "Loch Sloy."

Macfarlane steps forth in the bloom of his vigor;
His sons march behind like a bright ridge of flame;
Now welcome to battle, ye sons of Clan Gregor,
Macfarlane descends to the field of his fame.

Bid the war-pipe resound through the wilds of Glenfruin;
Let the claymore in strength sweep round and destroy;
Macfarlane will fall, or Macgregor meet ruin;—
On, on to the battle, my heroes, "Loch Sloy!"

THE DIVISION OF THE MacFARLANE CLAN

THE DIVISION OF THE MACFARLANE CLAN*

About the close of the fifteenth century the Clan MacFarlane was divided into two sections, and in the clan country old people still refer to the distinction. The tradition is given as follows in a manuscript by the late Rev. James Dewar, Arrochar. In the reign of James III of Scotland the laird of MacFarlane was slain at the battle of Sauchieburn, near Stirling, in the year 1488, † leaving a widow, who was an Englishwoman, the mother of one son. He also left a son by his first wife, who was the heir, but this son and heir had the misfortune to be proud, vain, silly, and a little weak-minded. His half-brother was possessed of a beautiful piebald horse, which had been given to him by some of his mother's relatives. The elder brother was about to set out for Stirling, and was very desirous of riding this horse, wishing, as the young chief, to make a very grand appearance. The stepmother refused the loan of the animal, alleging, as her reason for so doing, her fear that it would not be safely brought back. Her denial only made the young man the more persistent. Finally a written agreement was drawn up and signed by the heir, in which he promised to forfeit to his half-brother his lands of Arrochar, in case the horse was not safely returned. The stepmother bribed the groom in attendance to poison the horse on the second day from home, and the estate accordingly went to the younger brother. The clan refused to receive the latter as their chief, but combined to acknowledge the elder brother as such, though not possessed of the lands of Arrochar. Some years later, by special act of Parliament, these lands were restored to the rightful heir. The dependents who supported the rightful heir were known as "Clann an oighre"—children of the heir; hence the MacNuirs and MacNairs, some of whom are now Weirs, are regarded as septes of the Clan Farlane. On the other hand those who supported the half-brother were called "Sliochd an eich bhallaich"—the followers of the piebald horse.

† If MacBain's statement is correct that the name "Macnair" appears in documents as early as 1390 and if it is also true that the McNair coat-of-arms dates back to 1314 we must place at least one hundred years before the battle of Sauchieburn the story of the scheming stepmother and the loyal children of the heir.

Another legend as to the division of the clan given by Miss Dorothy M. T. McNair is as follows:

Some time before the days of King Robert the Bruce a certain chief of the MacFarlanes or Murrays (there is controversy as to which) was blest with two sons, if you could call it blest, for the elder seems to have been rather wild—fond of hunting, drinking, fighting, and adventure, and caring little for his position as heir to the chieftainship or, indeed, for anything on earth except perhaps his lady-love; and the younger, though clever, self-controlled, and shrewd, was extremely selfish and rather fond of worldly possessions. He is said to have been a very handsome man and talented, while his elder brother was unusually plain.

Now it happened that both brothers sought the same maiden for his wife, and each thought the other had the better chance—the elder on account of the younger one's good looks and many accomplishments, the younger because his brother was the heir, the coming chief, and therefore a much richer and more important man than he. They grew jealous of each other and no doubt the matter would have ended in a quarrel had they not been so near of kin. As it was they agreed to leave it to fate and to enter into a competition with each other to decide the matter. If the elder won, the younger was to cease courting the lady and leave the field clear for his less handsome rival; if the younger, the elder was to give up his rights to the future chieftainship of the clan, thus making his brother the heir. The younger won, and now that all the advantages were on his side, confidently pressed his suit. But the lady, with the perverseness of her sex, seems to have taken matters into her own hands, for it is said that despite all she refused the younger brother and married the elder.

When the old chief died the younger brother came forward as his heir, according to the agreement, but, though his brother seems to have been willing to keep to his bargain, some of the clansmen objected, saying that a chieftainship did not belong to an individual but was, as it were, a trust, handed down from father to son, and that the elder brother had no right to give away his birthright. The majority of the clan, however, accepted the younger brother as their chief and from him the chiefs of the parent clan are said to be descended, but the objectors and their families followed the elder brother, the old chief's original "heir," and formed a new sept. When their leader died his son was called "Mac-na-oghre," or, "son of the heir," and from this the sept "McNair" are said to derive their name.

Miss Mary Wilson MacNair has found in John McNab's The Clan Macnab (Edinburgh, 1907) the following: "Sprung from the Macnabs and of collateral descent with them are the Macnairs, a family well known in certain parts of Perthshire. Their ancestor simply dropped the Macnab from the old designation of "Macnab Oighre" and retained the latter portion of Oighre or Eyre (Heir) as his surname. The Macnairs are mentioned on the records in the fourteenth century."

EARLY ORIGIN OF THE McNAIRS

EARLY ORIGIN OF THE McNAIRS*

As a reward for bravery shown at the Battle of Bannockburn (1314) King Robert Bruce is said to have awarded three coats-of-arms, one of them to Hamish (?), chief of the McNairs. This coat-of-arms has the following description: "Or, a lion rampant gules between three pheons azure. Crest, a mermaid ppr. holding in her dexter hand a mirror and in the sinister a comb."† The pheons on the McNair shield are blue to distinguish the coat-of-arms from the royal coat of arms of Scotland. The mermaid signifies the seat of the clan near Loch Lomond. If this incident is true, the McNairs existed as a clan at least as early as the Battle of Bannockburn or in the year 1314.

Alexander MacBain in his Etymological Dictionary of the Gaelic Language (Stirling, 1911) makes the following statement:

Mac Nair, Gaelic M'An-uidhir; for Mac Iain uidhir, son of dun (odhar) John (son of John the Swarthy). . . . Such is the source of the Gairloch branch of the name. The perthshire sept appears in documents as M'Nayr (1468), Macnayr (1390), which is explained as M' an oighre, son of the heir, M' Nuirs in Cowal (1685), John Maknewer (1596, Dunoon), Tho. M' Nuyer (1681, Inverness). Professor Mackinnon suggested M'Anfhuidhur, son of the smith of faber; nor should M'Anfhuidhir, the stranger's son, be overlooked as a possible etymology.

SECOND GENERATION

2. DAVID MACNAIR (David [1]^t) was born at his father's residence, Borestone Cottage, in 1840. He married in 1871 Helen Anna Cameron, daughter of John Russell Bedford Cameron, Eighth Chieftain of Lundavra, Clan Cameron, and County Inspector, Royal Irish Constabulary, in Batavia, Java, Dutch East Indies. David was manager in Batavia for a firm called Clarence Houghton & Co., Ltd., of London (East Indian merchants). He afterward lived at Forest Hill, London, and also at Withington, Manchester, England, where he died on November 17, 1890. The children are:

3. Beatrice MacNair died in infancy
4. Helen MacNair
5. Donald MacNair
6. Georgina Eveleen MacNair
7. Lilian Maud MacNair
8. Ewen Allan MacNair
9. Edwina Mabel MacNair was born June 30, 1880; she is unmarried, and lives at 11 Brendan Road, Donnybrook, Dublin, Ireland.
10. Neil Douglas MacNair
11. Irene Muriel MacNair was born May 2, 1887; she is unmarried, and her present address is care of J. Beauchamp Cameron, "Aughamore," Wellcamp, Toowomba, Queensland, Australia.

8. GEORGE BEST McNAIR (James [2]² James [1]¹) was rather delicate as a boy, and when about eighteen or nineteen sailed for Bendigo, Australia, chiefly in the hope that the sea voyage might benefit his health. On the way he was shipwrecked and it was nine days before he and a few other survivors were rescued; the greater portion of both passengers and crew perished. He gave up his share of drinking water to a young girl who, in spite of his efforts to save her, died from exhaustion. He chewed the lead off the cabin stairs of the wrecked vessel to stave off the feeling of great thirst. He lost one of his lungs but otherwise fully recovered and lived to be over seventy. He married Dorothy Dixon, daughter of Rev. Isaac Dixon and Charlotte Bagshawe. Children:

14. Frances Eleanor McNair
15. Emily Edith McNair
16. Mary Christian McNair
17. George Stanser McNair

JOHN FREDERICK ADOLPHUS McNAIR (1828-1910)*

JOHN FREDERICK ADOLPHUS McNAIR, Indian and colonial official, was born at Bath, on October 23, 1828. He was the eldest son of Major Robert McNair, staff officer, London. After education at King's College, London, and at the School of Mines, he entered the Madras (royal) Artillery in 1845, was promoted captain in 1858 and major (retired) in 1870. He was employed with his battery in India until 1850. In 1853 he proceeded to the Straits Settlements and served at Malacca and in Labuan. After qualifying in the Hindustani and Malay languages he was appointed in 1858 staff officer and subsequently adjutant of artillery for the straits district. After serving during 1857 as A.D.C. and private secretary to the governor, E. A. Blundell, he became executive engineer and superintendent of convicts at Singapore. He received the approval of the governor-general of India, Sir John (afterward Lord) Lawrence, in council on the completion of the military works at the latter place, and the government of Netherlands India thanked him for service in connection with the introduction into Java of the Straits system of prison discipline.

From 1865 to 1867 McNair was in England as deputy-governor in charge of public works at Woking prison. In 1867, when the administration of the Straits Settlements was transferred from the Indian to the colonial department, he returned to Singapore as colonial engineer and controller of convicts and member of the legislative council of the colony (February 14). He was colonial secretary during 1868, a member of the executive council from 1869, and colonial engineer and surveyor-general from 1873. In February, 1881, he was transferred to Penang as acting lieutenant-governor and resident councillor of that province. He retired on a pension August 10, 1884. McNair meanwhile was officially employed on important missions to Siam in 1868, 1874, 1875, and 1878.

In 1875-76 he was officiating chief commissioner in Perak during the disturbances in that state, and took part in the affair of Kotah Lamah on the Perak River, for which he received the medal and clasp. He was special commissioner to Selangor to inquire into piracy, and to Perak in connection with the Pangkor treaty in 1874. He was made C.M.G. May 24, 1878.

After his retirement, McNair occupied his time principally in writing. He had already issued in 1878 Perak and the Malays, a descriptive account of the Malayan peninsula, and in 1889, in collaboration with W. D. Bayless, he published Prisoners Their Own Warders, an interesting account of the old Singapore convict prison. He also issued (for private circulation) Oral Traditions from the Indus, and wrote many articles for the Asiatic Quarterly on eastern topics.

McNair died at Brighton, May 17, 1910, and was buried in the town cemetery. He was twice married: first in 1849 to Sarah des Granges Paine, daughter of Rev. J. Paine, M.A., who died in 1903; and second, to Madalena Vallence Williamson, daughter of E. Vallence, of Brighton, and widow of Surgeon-Major G. Williamson, R.Z.M.C. He had two sons and three daughters.

A portrait in oils, three-quarter length, belongs to his second son, Arthur Wyndham McNair, of the Indian Civil Service.

WILLIAM WATTS McNAIR (1849-89)*

WILLIAM WATTS McNAIR was born September 13, 1849. He joined the Indian Survey Department, September 1, 1867. His first twelve years of service were passed with the Rajputana and Mysore topographical parties, and under Majors Strahan and Thullier he learned surveying thoroughly. In the autumn of 1879 he was selected to accompany the Khyber Column of the Afghan field force, and was present during the fighting before Cabul and the defense of Sharpur in 1879-80. While in Afghanistan he made valuable maps, exploring the Lughman Valley and the route to Kafristan; and he was the first officer to traverse the same valley and the same route from Cabul to Jalalabad.

South of Cabul he penetrated to the Logar and Wardak valleys. After the war he was engaged in the Kobat survey under Major Holdich, tracing the frontier line from Kohat to Bannu, and, across the border, surveying part of the valley of the Tochi, and mapping some of the Khost district. He was soon transferred to one of the Beluchistan parties and passed the remainder of his life in surveying in that district, his main work being to carry a series of triangles from the Indus at Dehra Gazi Khan, near the thirtieth parallel, to Quetta.

In 1883, hearing that a native explorer was about to visit Kafristan, he volunteered to accompany him disguised as a hakim, or native doctor. He obtained a year's leave, and the party crossed the frontier April 13. They passed through the Dir country, and came to the Kotal pass, at an elevation of 10,450 feet to Ashreth, and thence to Chitral. He had intended to go northward, by the Hindu Kush valleys, but after reaching the Dora pass, and making observations in the Chitral district, he was compelled to return, owing to his identity having been disclosed by a native, Kafristan being very strictly secluded from Europeans. On his return he was officially reprimanded by the Viceroy for crossing the frontier without permission. He read an account of his expedition before the Royal Geographical Society in London on December 10, 1883, and was awarded the Murchison Grant. He continued his survey work, but in 1889 was attacked by fever at Quetta and moved to Mussoree, where he died August 13, 1889.

The following account of the career of Mr. McNair by Colonel T. H. Holdrich appears in the Proceedings of the Royal Geographical Society, II (London, 1889), 684-86.

Among the many practical geographers who have passed away during the year 1889 is Mr. W. McNair, of the Indian Survey Department. His career was very closely connected with a new phase of military exploration carried out on the frontier of India, which had gradually superseded the older forms of reconnaissance, and was rendered possible by late improvements in the smaller classes of instruments, and a wider knowledge of the use of the plane table. For about ten years previous to the Afghan War of 1879, McNair was attached to the topographical branch of the Indian Survey, and he had always shown a special aptitude for that class of work, which consists in acquiring a comprehensive grasp of a wide field of geographical detail in the shortest possible space of time. When war broke out, Afghanistan no longer afforded a field for such simple geographical exploration as had already been accomplished during the campaign of 1839-43. A completer military survey of all important districts was required, which would furnish detailed information of routes and passes which were far removed from the beaten tracks of previous armies. At the same time the conditions under which such a survey was to be made were exactly the same as those under which the rough reconnaissances of the former campaign were obtained. The surveyor was under the same urgent restrictions, both as to time and as to the limits of his own movements of the direct line of march. McNair, with one or two others, was selected for this topographical duty with the Afghan field force, and right good use he made of his opportunities. He was present during the fighting which took place before Kabul in the winter of 1879-80 and was shut up with the garrison of Sherpur during the fortnight's siege. His energy and determination carried him through the campaign with more than credit—he was able to illustrate modern methods of field topography in a manner which threw new light on what was then but a tentative and undeveloped system. He was one of the first to prove the full value of the plane table in such work as this, for it must be remembered that he was working in a country peculiarly favourable to the application of a system of graphic triangulation, and very different to the densely forest-clad mountains of the eastern frontier into which the plane table had been carried before, with advancing brigades. At the close of the war, which brought no recognition of his exceptional services, he was appointed to the Kohat district survey party, which was primarily raised for the mapping out of that district, but which afforded occasional opportunities for extending topography across the border. When the party was first raised, our frontier maps were of the most elementary character; there was many a blank in the topography of the lower borderland, and geographical darkness shrouded nearly the whole line of frontier mountains. The hostility of the border people had always been such that it was a matter of considerable risk to approach them, but the temper of the tribes was then rapidly changing footing with the times, and McNair rapidly succeeded in establishing himself on a friendly basis with frontier robber chiefs, whose assistance was invaluable in arranging short excursions across the line, by means of which he was able to complete a fairly accurate map of most of the border country. No work that ever he accomplished has been of more value to the government of India than this unobtrusive frontier mapping. It was while he was thus occupied between Peshawur and Dera Ismail Khan that he made the acquaintance of certain influential men of the Kakar Khel, who offered to see him safely through the dangerous districts outlying Kaffirstan, and gave him the opportunity of being the first European to set his foot in that land of romance. The snow-capped summits of some of the more southerly peaks of Kaffirstan had been seen and fixed by McNair during the progress of the Afghan campaign, and it had ever been a dream with him to reach those mighty spurs, and turn those peaks to account by using them as the basis of a topographical map of the country. He did reach them, as the records of the Royal Geographical Society sufficiently show, and he may fairly claim to be the first Englishman to lift even a corner of the veil of mystery which has ever shrouded that inaccessible country so far as its topographical conformation is concerned. This excursion won for him the Murchinson Grant of the Society, and established his position as a leading practical geographer.

For the last few years of his life, McNair had been almost incessantly occupied in the rough work of frontier surveying, which his knowledge of frontier people and power of winning their confidence and help especially fitted him to undertake. At the time of his death he was employed in the Baluchistan Survey party in the completion of a triangulation series which should carry the great Indian system to the Kojak range, and furnish a scientific and highly accurate base for future extension into Afghanistan. This was a duty which severely taxed even his vigorous constitution. It involved incessant labour in examining lofty mountain peaks in order to select suitable sites for stations, and subsequently days and nights of anxious watching during the progress of the observations, while food and water (when snow was not lying on the ground) were scarce, and mists and clouds hung round the mountains. No doubt it tried him hard, and when typhoid attacked him at Quetta he seemed unable to make a good fight for his life. He was able, however, to reach Mussoorie, where he died on August 13, 1889, leaving a gap in the department which he served so well that it will be exceedingly hard to fill.

McNAIRS IN CANADA

DESCENDANTS OF HUGH McNAIR*

1. HUGH McNAIR and his wife first left Edinburgh, Scotland, about a hundred years ago, and settled in New York state. But they were not contented and returned to Scotland, and then came back to America, settling in Ohio. They made several trips back and forth until they finally settled in Canada and bought land from the Canadian government near Muskoka Falls. There were seven sons and one daughter. The only son of whom there is record is:

DESCENDANTS OF JAMES McNAIR AND ELIZABETH CRAWFORD*

1. JAMES McNAIR married Elizabeth Crawford in Scotland. In the early part of the nineteenth century after two children Donald and Katie were born to them, the family came to Canada. They traveled up the St. Lawrence River until they reached Valleyfield where they took up some land. The first year they nearly starved, and, as a consequence, moved farther up the river to Godmanchester, County of Huntington, Province of Quebec, seven miles from the New York state line. This land was heavily timbered and until it was cleared well enough to farm, their source of income was from the sale of potash which they obtained by burning the timber. James McNair lived 106 years and 6 months and his wife 111 years and 2 months. Records give the following children:

2. Donald McNair, born in Scotland
3. Katie McNair, born in Scotland
4. Duncan McNair, born in Godmanchester
5. Archie McNair, born in Godmanchester
6. James McNair, born in Godmanchester
7. Alexander McNair, born in Godmanchester
8. Christiana McNair, born in Godmanchester
9. Elizabeth McNair, born in Godmanchester
10. Mary McNair, born in Godmanchester
11. John McNair

SECOND GENERATION

11. JOHN McNAIR (James [1]^r) was born in Godmanchester. He and a brother David went to California in 1849 and prospected for gold. After three years John returned to his home on a visit. His mother prevailed upon him to buy a 160-acre farm next to his father's and settle down. He married Christiana Caldwell who

THE LIBERTY BELL

THE LIBERTY BELL

The old bellman was Andrew McNair, who had rung the Bell during those troubled times for eighteen years. See Wayne Whipple, The Story of the Liberty Bell, pp. 121-23 (Philadelphia: Henry Altemus Co., 1910); also E. R. Gudehus, The Liberty Bell, pp. 10, 12 (Philadelphia: Dunlap Printing Co., 1915).

There was a tumult in the city,
In the quaint old Quaker town,
And the streets were rife with people
Pacing restless up and down
People gathering at the corners,
Where they whispered each to each,
And the sweat stood on their temples
With the earnestness of speech.

As the bleak Atlantic currents
Lash the wild Newfoundland shore,
So they beat against the State House,
So they surged against the door,
And the mingling of their voices
Made a harmony profound,
Till the quiet street of Chestnut
Was all turbulent with sound.

So they surged against the State House
While all solemnly inside
Sat the Continental Congress,
Truth and reason for their guide,
O'er a simple scroll debating
Which, though simple it might be
Yet should shake the cliffs of England
With the thunders of the free.

Far aloft in the high steeple
Sat the bellman, old and gray,
He was weary of the tyrant
And his iron-sceptered sway.

* By Charles Brockden Brown (1771-1810).

So he sat with one hand ready
 On the clapper of the bell
 When his eye should catch the signal
 The long-expected news to tell.

See! see! the dense crowd quivers
 Through all its lengthy line
 As the boy beside the portal
 Hastens forth to give the sign;
 With his little hand uplifted,
 Breezes dallying with his hair,—
 Hark! with high, clear intonation
 Breaks his young voice in the air.

Hushed the people's swelling murmur
 Whilst the boy cries joyously—
 "Ring!" he shouts. "Ring, Grandpa, Ring, oh, ring for Liberty!"
 Quickly at the given signal
 The old bellman lifts his hand,
 Forth he sends the good news, making
 Iron music through the land.

How they shouted! What rejoicing!
 How the old Bell shook the air
 Till the clang of Freedom ruffled
 The calmy gliding Delaware!
 How the bonfires and the torches
 Lighted up the night's repose,
 And from the flames, like fabled phoenix,
 Our glorious Liberty arose!

That old State House Bell is silent,
 Hushed is now its clamorous tongue,
 But the spirit it awakened
 Still is living—ever young;
 And when we greet the smiling sunlight
 On the Fourth of each July,
 We will ne'er forget the bellman
 Who, betwixt the earth and sky,
 Rang out loudly "Independence!"
 Which, please God, shall never die!

McNAIRS OF GEORGIA

DESCENDANTS OF DANIEL McNAIR AND CATHARINE
——— AND ELEAN MARTIN*

1. DANIEL McNAIR† was born in Scotland in 1748. It is said that when he came to America he settled first in Virginia, then in North Carolina, then in Columbia County, Georgia, and finally in Richmond County, Georgia. He had at least two brothers. One was Gilbert, father of Anna McNair, the first wife of Samuel McNair (2). The other was John, a tailor by trade, who had one son and three daughters, Betsy, Janet, and Polly who was married to John Lucky.

Daniel McNair was a Revolutionary soldier and as such was granted bounty land. Probably he served under Colonel James McNeil to whom he gave power of attorney to receipt for his warrant for bounty land. On this warrant he was granted 287½ acres in Washington County, Georgia, June 3, 1784.‡ When he made out his last will, July 1, 1811, he possessed 202½ acres of land in Randolph County, Georgia. He died in 1811, and was buried near the old Martin McNair place, a few miles from Blythe, Georgia.

WILL OF DANIEL McNAIR

STATE OF GEORGIA,
RICHMOND COUNTY.

To all whom these presents shall come and be made manifest.
Greeting:—

Know ye that I, Daniel McNair, of the state and county aforesaid, have this the ninth day of March One Thousand Eight hundred and eleven by this my last will and testament disposeth of all and singular my real and personal property in manner and form as follows:

(That is to say), I do give and bequeath unto my well beloved wife Elean, four negroes, namely, Ben, Hannah, Lucky and Sarah, the land

* From data of Mrs. J. F. Jones (34), Miss Maud Clark Penn (65), Mrs. W. S. Evans (55), and Mr. H. Q. McNair (38).

I now live on, the stock of cattle, hogs and sheep, two geldings and one mare, plantation tools, two wagons, household and kitchen furniture.

I do give and bequeath unto my well beloved daughter, Anna, the sum of one hundred dollars.

I do give and bequeath unto my well beloved son, Martin, one negro boy, namely, Jesse.

I do give and bequeath unto my well beloved son, Robert, one negro boy, namely, Trusty.

I do give and bequeath unto my well beloved daughter, Harriet, one negro boy, namely, Sam.

I do give and bequeath unto my well beloved son, James S., one negro boy, namely, David, and one sorrel gelding.

I do give and bequeath unto my well beloved children, namely, Martin, Robert, Harriet and James S., my lot of land in Randolph county containing two hundred two and one-half acres to be equally divided among them.

And lastly, I do hereby appoint and ordain my well beloved wife, Elean McNair, Executrix of this my last will and testament.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal the day and date above written.

DANIEL MCNAIR (L. S.)

29. ANN MARIAH MCNAIR (Daniel [10]³ Samuel [2]² Daniel [1]¹) was born in 1834, and was married to William Stapleton in 1857. Their children are:

- 60. Walter Stapleton
- 61. Sallie Stapleton
- 62. George Stapleton
- 63. Fannie Stapleton

30. AMMIE PARKS MCNAIR (John Gazaway [21]³ Samuel [2]² Daniel [1]¹) was born in Henry County, Georgia, December 28, 1845, and was married to Thomas Robert Penn, of Monticello, Georgia, February 16, 1869, at the home of her parents who were then residing in Rockdale County.

Mr. Penn, son of William Champion Penn and Celina Hardman Smith, was born in Monticello, June 30, 1844, and died there September 16, 1906. He was a descendant of the Penn, Slade, Amos, Smith, and Hardman families of Maryland and Virginia, and filled various important official positions in his town and county. He was a Confederate soldier and sailor, enlisting in the "Glover Guards," Company G, Fourth Georgia Regiment, Georgia Volunteer Infantry, May 10, 1862. Was wounded at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, and at Mine Run, Virginia. He volunteered in the Confederate States Navy and served on the "Merrimac" on the James River; he was transferred to the "Privateer Tallahassee"; he made two trips to Nova Scotia, and then transferred to the "Iron Clad Richmond," where he remained until the surrender.

"Mrs. Penn was a woman of extraordinary ability and achievements. To her was given a sphere of influence which is given to few women, an influence extending to civic, social, and religious life, not only in her own community, but throughout the state, and imposing upon her a heavy responsibility which she discharged faithfully. But so modest was she, never for a moment did she suspect her own greatness. For twenty-nine years she was the well-known editor and proprietor of the Monticello News, an influential newspaper of the state and a factor in the affairs of her section. Through its columns, her great mind and fluent pen were ever used to promote the good and true. She was the efficient treasurer of the Woman's Press Club of Georgia during its existence of more than twelve years. She was one of the organizers and for years presiding officer of the Ladies' Garden Club, the Confederate Memorial Association, and the Monticello Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Her devotion as wife and mother was beautiful and her home was noted for the delightful hospitality which she dispensed. A consecrated and active Christian, her sympathies, her prayers, and her beneficences embraced the circuit of the globe. To her local church she gave encouragement, inspiration, and help. She was one of the founders and president of the Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church, a leader in the Ladies' Aid Society, a teacher in the Sunday school, and every service of the sanctuary found her present. Her passing February 2, 1909, occasioned deep sorrow in the hearts of all who knew and loved her. As an evidence of the great respect and esteem in which she was held by her townspeople, all places of business were closed during the funeral services."

The children of Thomas Robert Penn and Ammie Parks McNair are:

64. Gertrude Penn was born September 29, 1870
65. Maud Clark Penn was born September 24, 1871

GEORGE WASHINGTON McNEAR (1837—)*

GEORGE WASHINGTON McNEAR, merchant, was born at Washington, Maine, March 27, 1837. His ancestor, John McNear, came from the north of Scotland about 1725 and settled in the then Province of Maine, where he became prominent in the Indian wars during the turbulent colonial times. Mr. McNear comes from a race of sea-going men, and his attention naturally turned to that line. He early showed great proficiency in mathematics and the study of navigation. At the age of fifteen, he went to sea, and after making several voyages, foreign and along the coast, landed in New Orleans in February, 1854, at the age of seventeen. He at once took command of a schooner plying on the waters of the Mississippi Sound and Lake Pontchartrain. In 1856, at the age of nineteen he became part owner and master of a steamboat plying the same waters, which he managed successfully until 1860.

Then, deciding to sell his interests in the South and go to California, he left New Orleans in June, 1860, for the home of his father in Maine, where he remained a short time.

Starting from New York in July for California, via the Isthmus of Panama, he arrived in San Francisco August 2, and, joining his brother in Petaluma, soon formed a partnership of McNear & Brother, commission and grain merchants.

In March, 1861, Mr. McNear opened a branch of the business in San Francisco and in 1867 they sent their first shipload of wheat to Europe. He separated from his brother in 1874, and established the house of G. W. McNear, now well known in every grain market of the world. He commenced shipping grain to Europe on an extensive scale, and has since continued a leading shipper of the Pacific Coast.

In 1880 he concentrated his shipping facilities at Port Costa, building warehouses and docks where he can load ten deep-water ships at once. In 1894 he acquired the flour mills and warehouses of Starr & Co., located at Wheatport and Vallejo, the largest on the coast, adding the flour and milling business to his other interests. He also owns some twenty-five warehouses, in the interior of the state. These, combined with his Port Costa, Wheatport, and Vallejo warehouses, aggregate a storage capacity of more than 8,000,000 bushels of grain. During his busy life Mr. McNear has found time to turn his attention successfully to other interests. He was president and largely instrumental in building the first electric street-railroad system in Oakland, California, and is also president of the First National Bank in Oakland. All his undertakings are managed with cool judgment and determined energy, and these traits, combined with constant application to business, have won him success. Mr. McNear was married in 1859, to Amanda Maria Church, daughter of Rev. Albert Church, of Bangor, Maine. He has four sons and two daughters. His sons are now assuming control of the various branches of his large business, the eldest being manager of the Liverpool branch of the house.

McNEIRS OF MARYLAND

DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS McNEIR AND NANCY BURGESS*

1. THOMAS McNEIR, according to tradition, and his brother came over from England with General Braddock during the French and Indian War (1750?). After Braddock's defeat and return to England, one brother settled in Pennsylvania, spelling his name "McNair," and the other settled in Maryland, spelling his name "McNeir."

In 1757 Thomas McNeir married Nancy Burgess, the daughter of Captain Edward Burgess, Sr., who raised and equipped a company in the service of the "Flying Camp" (1775-83). Colonel William Burgess, grandfather of Captain Burgess, was justice, Anne Arundel County, 1664-65, 1674-80; high sheriff, 1664; lieutenant, 1659; captain, 1661; major, 1675; colonel, 1676; commanding foot of Anne Arundel County; commander-in-chief of Maryland forces against the Indians, 1677; burgess for Anne Arundel County, 1660, 1669-82; member of council, October 12, 1682, 1686-87; commissioned deputy governor, May 1, 1684.

Thomas McNeir resisted the landing of the Stamp Tax Commissioner in the harbor of Annapolis, Maryland, in 1765, and is spoken of as the "first patriot wounded in the struggle for American rights." In the fight which ensued, Mr. McNeir had his thigh broken, but his party succeeded in preventing the landing of the stamps at that point. During the Revolutionary War he was a sergeant in the Frederick German Artillery.

Thomas McNeir and Nancy Burgess had two sons:

2. George McNeir
3. Thomas McNeir

Mayer, of Brandon, Mississippi, in the Daily Clarion-Ledger, Jacksonville, Mississippi, February 9, 1903; "General Evander McNair," in the Confederate Veteran, XI (June, 1903), pp. 265-66, by H. G. Bunn; and other newspaper clippings.

which few young men of his day were able to procure. After completing his education he taught school for one session, and then retired to his father's farm. In 1843 he engaged in the mercantile business in Jacksonville, Mississippi, under the firm name McNair & Co. But when the war between Mexico and the United States began in 1846 he enlisted as a private in the State Fencibles, which was mustered into the Mississippi Regiment of Rifles at Vicksburg, under Colonel Jefferson Davis. He served throughout the war and was promoted to orderly sergeant of Company E.

Upon being mustered out, he went to Brandon, Mississippi, in 1850 where he went into the dry goods business with D. W. Wilkinson. In 1856 he went on a tour through Texas. Then he went to Washington, Arkansas, and again engaged in the mercantile business.

On August 11, 1859, he married Hannah Merrill, of Oxford, New York. She at this time was an assistant in a school for girls in Washington, Arkansas, and considered a very fine teacher.

On the breaking out of the Civil War he organized a battalion of seven companies of infantry, afterward the Fourth Arkansas Confederate Infantry. They immediately set out to join Brigadier General McCulloch, in southwest Missouri, and were mustered into Confederate service August 17, 1861. They were then a part of McCulloch's Division. Evander McNair commanded his regiment in the battle of Elk Horn, and when McCulloch and McIntosh had fallen, and Colonel Louis Herbert, of the Third Louisiana Infantry, the senior captain, had been captured, in the early stages of the battle, he commanded the infantry of the division, and repulsed the enemy in front of the Confederate right.

For the manner in which Colonel McNair commanded his brigade and routed the enemy in the battle of Shiloh on August 30, 1862, he was promoted on the battle field of Richmond, Kentucky, by General Kirby Smith to a brigadier generalship which was confirmed by the War Department April 22, 1863. After his promotion he was assigned to command of the brigade to which his old regiment belonged.

He was in command of his brigade at the battle of Murfreesboro, Tennessee, on December 31, 1862. Afterward he was with General

EVANDER McNAIR (1820–1902)
Brigadier General, Confederate States Army

Joseph E. Johnston in his effort to relieve the beleaguered city of Vicksburg, Mississippi; and still later, with his brigade, took an active and efficient part in the battle of Chickamauga, where he received a wound in the thigh, which, though not dangerous, incapacitated him for service in the field for a long time. He was transferred to the Trans-Mississippi Department just before the Christmas following. Upon recovering from his wound he was assigned to the command of one of the four brigades in General Churchill's division. This division, composed of light infantry, was not engaged in any important battle after this.

After the war, General McNair remained for a short time in Washington, Arkansas, and then went to New Orleans in the wholesale grocery business. Because of his wife's health they moved to Magnolia, Mississippi, where his wife died October 13, 1878. After this he and his children moved to Hattiesburg, Mississippi.

General McNair was a member of the Odd Fellows for forty years. He was a Presbyterian and a regular attendant at church, even when he had to be taken to church in a carriage, until he was unable to go any more. He was conservative in his views and tolerant but firm in his convictions. It is said that had he devoted his life to military affairs he would have been distinguished among the foremost military men of the age. Although he was public spirited and patriotic he had no taste for public life, but found his enjoyment in the private walks of life. He was a commanding personality—tall, erect, graceful, and deliberate in every movement. In politics he was a Whig before the Civil War, but afterward he joined the Democratic party.

His later years were mostly spent with his daughter, Mrs. Eaton, at Hattiesburg. A few weeks before his death he visited his other daughter, Mrs. Fairly, near Hattiesburg, where he was suddenly taken ill November 9, and died November 13, 1902. He is buried beside his wife in Magnolia, Mississippi.

The children of Evander McNair and Hannah Merrill are:

14. Edward Fletcher McNair is with the firm of A. W. Stevens Lumber Company, Chatawa, Mississippi

15. Myra Conway McNair, 105 McLeod Street, Hattiesburg, Mississippi, was married to Samuel C. Eaton. She is Past Grand Matron and Present Grand Secretary of Mississippi, Order of the Eastern Star. She has the gun that General Evander McNair carried through the Civil War and also a pair of solid silver spurs which were presented to him by Jefferson Davis at the close of the war for bravery and faithful performance of duty, as well as the Confederate battle flag he had during the war.
16. Maggie Merrill McNair was married to Dan Fairly and they live near Hattiesburg

13. FRED WALTER MCNAIR (Hugh [7]³ John [2]² James [1]¹) was born in Fennimore, Wisconsin, December 3, 1862. He was educated in the public schools and received the degree of B.S. from the University of Wisconsin, in 1891; of D.Sc., Lafayette College, 1907; of D.Sc., Rhode Island State College, 1919. He was instructor, and later Fellow, in mathematics in the University of Wisconsin, 1889-91; he was professor of mathematics and physics, Michigan College of Mines, 1893-98. He has been president of the Michigan College of Mines since 1899, and consulting engineer physicist of the United States Bureau of Standards since 1918.

In 1917, acting on a suggestion of the War Department, he organized a committee which united forty-one leading engineering colleges of the country in a publicity campaign—the first instance of such college co-operation.

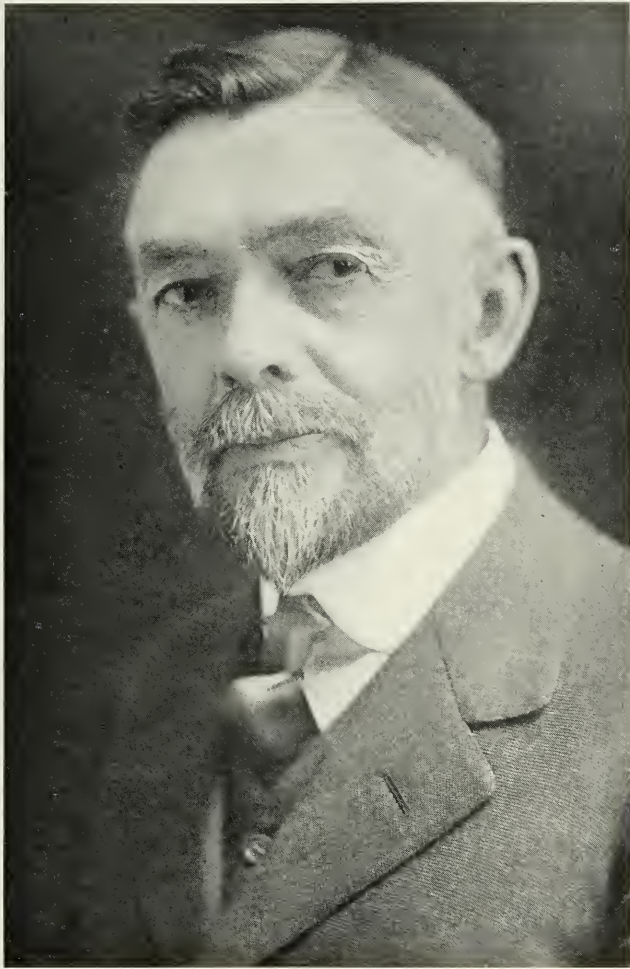

He represents the Society for Promotion of Engineering Education as a member of the Joint Conference Committee established by the National Industrial Conference Board for the study of engineering education as related to the industries. He has engaged in various expert investigations for private interests, and has been a contributor on physical, engineering, and educational subjects to technical and scientific periodicals. He is a member of the American Physical Society; Fellow, American Association for Advancement of Science, vice-president, Section D, 1904-5, secretary of council, 1905-6, general secretary, 1906-7; member, Society for Promotion of Engineering Education, member of council, 1900-1902, vice-president, 1902-3, president, 1904-5; member, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Metallurgical and Mining Society of America, Lake Superior Mining Institute, Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Beta Pi, Rotary, and various other clubs.

On June 30, 1886, he married Berta Philbrick, a teacher of Fennimore, Wisconsin. Children:

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN MACNAIR AND JENNET SMYLIE AND CATHERINE BUIE*

1. JOHN MACNAIR† was born in 1735 in a small village in the Parish of Kilkenny in the shire of Argyle, North Britain. He was the youngest son of Neill McNair and Sallie McGill. His grandfather's name was Edward McNair. John MacNair married Jennet Smylie, daughter of John Smylie, December, 1763. She died in September, 1769. In 1770 he came to North Carolina, and bought a plantation at Hitchcock, in Anson County. He married his second wife, Catherine Buie, daughter of Donald Buie, of Dura, Scotland, in 1772. She died in 1787. After living for some time in Anson County, he moved to Bladen, now Robeson County, and settled on the Lumbar River, where his great grandson Robert McNair now lives. He was a ruling elder in the Center Presbyterian Church there, and filled the office until his death. He was also a Royal Arch Mason.

The children of John MacNair and Jennet Smylie are:

2. Roderick McNair
3. Betsey McNair was born in January, 1766
4. Neill McNair was born in January, 1768, and died in December, 1769

McNAIRS AND McNEARS OF PENNSYLVANIA

DESCENDANTS OF DAVID McNAIR AND ANNA MARIA DUNNING*

1. DAVID McNAIR was born in the Province of Pennsylvania in 1736. His father, David McNair, Sr., came from Donaghmore, County Donegal, Ireland, in 1732, or perhaps a year or two earlier, and settled in Derry Township, Lancaster (now Dauphin) County, Pennsylvania, where he took out a warrant for 200 acres of land, September 6, 1737, and one for 100 acres August 23, 1742.†

Tradition tells that his ancestors in Donegal came from a Scottish family of the same name that belonged to a gathering of clans near the head of Loch Lomond, and of whom the earls of Lennox were the hereditary chieftains.‡

David McNair, Sr., had at least three sons, John, Alexander, and David, perhaps also William M., and Ezekiel. The father and two sons, John and David, had land in West Pennsboro, Cumberland County, from about 1762 to 1767. John, who married Mrs. Ann Davidson, April 11, 1758, and died in 1790, is found in Toboine Township in 1767 and 1773. Alexander, his brother,

* A large part of the data in this account, particularly with reference to the descendants of Dunning McNair (5) has been taken from the book entitled Colonel George Stewart and his wife, Margaret Harris; their ancestors and descendants by Robert Stewart, D.D., LL.D. (Lahore, India: The Civil and Military Press, 1907). Permission to include this material was granted by the wife, sisters, and brother of Robert Stewart, July 18, 1922. Data also were obtained from Edward Brown who furnished much of the material for the account of Alexander McNair (9), Henry Harvey McNair (132), Lilburn G. McNair (69), and Stella Cabanné Walsh (87).

† It has been generally affirmed that Governor McNair was born in 1774 in Derry Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and that he was the son of David McNair, who settled on the Swatara in 1742. This and much other information that has been published regarding his ancestors and early life in Pennsylvania is inaccurate and misleading.

who had at least six children, lived in Toboine also, from the year 1767, and died about 1792.

David McNair, Sr., was a Covenanter, that is, a Reformed Presbyterian, and probably remained so all his life. Rev. John Cuthbertson, the first preacher of this church in America, mentions him in his diary. Of Derry Reformed Presbyterian Church, the Rev. W. M. Glasgow in his History of the Reformed Church in America (pp. 255 ff.) says, "This Covenanter Society was located about nine miles east of Paxtang and was first visited by the Rev. John Cuthbertson in September, 1751, when he preached and lodged at the house of David McNair. In October, 1751, he returned, preached, and called at the house of Alexander Swan on the mountain near by," etc. The principal families were those of John Thomson, Alexander Swan, Thomas Montgomery, and David McNair. They mostly worshiped with the people of Paxtang, which was four miles east of the present city of Harrisburg.

David McNair, Jr., appears on the tax lists of Milford Township as early as 1769. He, or his father, bought land in this township, August 14, 1771, from Charles Stewart, which he sold again, October 15, 1773. He had land adjoining what Thomas Harris bought November 12, 1774, and was still living at that time.

He married Ann Dunning, whose full given name according to tradition was Anna Maria, June 15, 1756, at St. James Church, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania.* Ann Dunning was the daughter of Robert and Mary Dunning and the granddaughter of Mary Dunning, whose husband's name also was probably Robert.† The family were probably from Ireland, though some say from England.

The grandmother, Mary Dunning, was a settler on the Big Chickies Creek, Donegal Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, before 1728,‡ but died a few years afterward. Her will is dated November 30, 1735, and was probated June 16, 1737. She left three and perhaps four children: Janet, who, previous to the date of the will, had married a Buchanan, Robert, Ezekiel, and probably John. At the time of her death she was in all likelihood a widow, but some say not.* In a short time after this Mary Dunning's death the family moved to what is now Cumberland County.

Ezekiel is said to have been born in the north of Ireland in 1708.† He early moved west of the Susquehanna, and had property in West Pennsboro (in 1750), Carlisle (in 1762-66), and Lack (in 1769 and 1773). He acted as sheriff of Cumberland County in 1750 and 1762-64, and perhaps in 1751. April 27, 1758, he was a lieutenant in Captain Byers' military company; and during Pontiac's war in 1763, while sheriff, he headed a posse of thirty men in defense of the harassed settlers. He died in 1796.‡

John Dunning, supposed to be a brother of Ezekiel, had 300 acres of land in Pennsboro as early as 1762.

Robert, the eldest brother, is said to have been born in Ireland about 1700, and to have died in Cumberland County in 1750. Several facts about "Robert Dunning" have been ascertained, but it is hard to determine which of them pertain to the father and which to the son, unless we adopt the probable theory that Mary Dunning, Sr., died a widow in 1737. These facts are the following: First "Robert Dunning" was licensed to keep a public house in 1732, and to sell rum in 1734, also to trade with the Indians in the manor of Paxton.§ Next he got 1,000 acres of land in West Pennsboro, and the first road through Cumberland ran past his spring. Then, among the officers of the regiment "over the river" in 1747-48 we find a Lieutenant-Colonel Robert Dunning and a Captain Robert Dunning.|| Finally, when Cumberland County was organized, Robert Dunning was appointed one of the first justices, March 10, 1749-50. He was an Indian trader, and his trading post, according to Cookson, was five miles from Big Spring, or a few miles west of the present site of Carlisle,

Pennsylvania.* One thing at any rate is certain about the second Robert, and that is his will, for in it he names his wife, Mary, and his brother Ezekiel as executors, and gives bequests to the following children: Mary, John, Ann, Margaret, and James.†

Of these John seems to have owned 200, and James 300, acres of land in West Pennsboro, in 1762, while the latter married Elizabeth Nugent, daughter of William Nugent and Esther Chambers.‡

David and Ann McNair settled in the Tuscarora Valley early in their married life. David had land in West Pennsboro, Cumberland County, from about 1762 to 1767, and his name appears on the tax list of Milford Township, Mifflin County, as early as 1769. In 1776 he and his eldest son, Robert, entered the service of the Army of the Republic together in Captain Thomas Bale's company of a regiment of the Pennsylvania Line commanded by Colonel Thomas Torbett. They served in that part of the army then engaged in the state of New Jersey. Tradition affirms that David was on Washington's staff and died in the service during the winter campaign of 1776-77, from wounds and injuries received in the battle of Trenton, but his name is not found in the records at Washington, D.C.§ He was buried in New Jersey at a place called Strawberry.

Letters of administration of David's estate were given to John Holmes, and to the widow, Ann McNair, August 7, 1777. The widow continued as administratrix and manager of her husband's estate until at least February 21, 1787, when she filed her account.

§ Dr. Egle in his Pennsylvania Genealogies (both editions) says his name was Alexander, but this is undoubtedly a mistake, and as a consequence this mistake vitiates his whole account. That "David" was his name is indisputably shown: (1) from the tradition of some branches of the family; (2) from the record of his marriage at St. James Church, Lancaster, (3) from the deed of his land and letters of administration on his estate, as recorded at Carlisle; (4) from the wills of his brothers John and Alexander, also recorded at Carlisle; (5) from the tax lists of Milford Township found at Carlisle; (6) from the fact that Dunning's (5) first two children were named David and none of his children was named Alexander.

Sometime afterward the widow and the younger children moved to the western part of the state near Pittsburgh, where one of the sons, Dunning (5), had settled on a farm shortly after his marriage to Ann Stewart in 1786. Ann McNair died near Pittsburgh at the home of her daughter Mrs. Horner.

The children of David and Ann McNair are:

2. Mary McNair
3. Robert McNair
4. Achan McNair was killed in the Indian War of 1812
5. Dunning McNair
6. David McNair
7. Ezekiel McNair lived in Erie, Pennsylvania. Said to have been killed in War of 1812 near Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania.
8. John McNair
9. Alexander McNair

5. DUNNING MCNAIR (David [1][†]) was born probably in West Pennsboro Township, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, July 23, 1762. When his parents moved he went with them to Milford Township, in the same county, but in a part which subsequently was included in Mifflin County at its organization, September 19, 1789, and more subsequently (March 2, 1831) was stricken off from Mifflin, and became a portion of Juniata County. Here, doubtless, he assisted in the work of the farm. After his father's death, he aided his mother in settling the affairs of the estate, for which he was paid nearly £16 sterling.*

On April 6, 1786, he married Ann Steuart.† She was the daughter of Colonel George Steuart and Margaret Harris, born at Deer Creek (now Churchville), Harford County, Maryland,‡ November 6, 1764. In 1775 she moved with her parents to Tuscarora Valley, Pennsylvania. At the time of the marriage, Dunning's mother's farm adjoined that of the Steuart's in Milford Township, Cumberland (now Juniata) County, Pennsylvania, near what is now called Doyle's Mills.

Soon after his marriage in the spring of 1786 Mr. McNair and his wife must have gone to the neighborhood of what is now called Wilkinsburg to live, for there their eldest child was born the next January.

* See p. 134 for story of Dunning and his brother Alexander concerning settlement of the estate.

† So written in the original Steuart family record; but in childhood, she was called "Anny," and this form seems to have clung to her afterward. On her tombstone is "Anna" and in her own Bible her name is written both "Anny" and "Anna."

‡ A tradition among her Louisville descendants says she was born in Mifflin County, Pa. But the history of the family as based on original documents renders this theory untenable.

The land at that point had been given by patent to William Thompson, April 23, 1788, but was purchased by Colonel* McNair, May 1, 1789. The tract is said to have contained 1,500 acres. On this he built a house which was called "Crows' Nest." This was located, says Mrs. J. G. Swishelm, on what is now Penn Avenue near the run. Subsequently he laid out a village and named it McNairstown; and in 1790 a family mansion was erected on the south which received the title "Dumplin Hall." Probably part of the money used in buying this land, and making these improvements, was furnished by his mother.† The Dunnings seem to have been richer than the McNairs.

In those days and regions the mansion spoken of seemed like a palace. It was built of stone, two stories in height and presented an imposing appearance.‡ Within were oaken floors, white pine doors and windows, curiously carved old mantel-pieces, higher than a man's head, and fireplaces, with deep grates and iron back walls, ornamented with fancy designs. Fronting the house were large grass grounds and a high-posted gateway, with deep, wide iron gates, through which carriages had their ingress and egress. Some years afterward, too, a large frame addition was made to the back of the building which added to its spaciousness and its grandeur. At a suitable distance to the rear, also, a row of huts was erected as quarters for thirty or forty slaves.

Dumplin Hall became the center of hospitality and refined social intercourse, not only for the neighborhood, but also for a wide range of country. Here Colonel McNair and his wife were accustomed to gather large companies of friends and serve up most excellent dinners. "It was the resort," says one writer, "of the most aristocratic families of the state,"§ which may, however, be a somewhat exaggerated statement. A journalist says:

* This title was acquired on account of his once being colonel in the Pennsylvania State Militia.

‡ This description, compiled from others, is not justified by a photograph of the building taken some years ago.

It was by these guests that it received the name Dumplin Hall—rather in a curious way, too. One day a company was assembled there, just a little while after the house was built, and the Colonel had taken out some of the gentlemen to show them what a finely built house was his. The stones used in building it were spherical boulders. As the gentlemen walked around it and admired the perfectness of the work, one of them remarked, “Colonel, these stones look like big apple dumplings.” “So they do,” said the others, and laughingly they called the place Dumplin Hall, and the name stuck to it ever afterward, and the Colonel was proud of it.

This house was one of historical interest. According to Judge Agnew, it was the ultimate headquarters of the United States Army which went west to suppress the Whiskey Insurrection in 1794. He says that General Washington, with his soldiers, “arrived finally on Sunday, November, 15, at Colonel McNair’s, within seven miles of Pittsburgh”;* and from this point a proclamation was issued November 17 for the return of the troops.

Colonel McNair was an active business man and a public-spirited citizen. More than fifty land transactions are on record in Pittsburgh in which he appears as one of the parties concerned. In what is now Butler County he also bought and sold property in the way of speculation. In 1800 or 1801 he was a member of the state legislature, and in the year 1815, at least, he was a manager of the Pittsburgh and Greensburg Turnpike.

“Colonel McNair,” says a writer for the western Pennsylvania public prints, “was a large landowner, a member of the Legislature, and a leader of public opinion—very prominent and popular, exerting a wide influence throughout this section of the state, in short a gentleman of the old school.” It is also said that, notwithstanding his aristocracy and love of display, he was very kind to his slaves, and that, when the law abolishing slavery came into operation, they did not wish to leave him.

Nor was his wife, Colonel Steuart’s daughter, though more religious, behind him in elegance, refinement, and the spirit of hospitality. As remembered by her friends she presented a fine appearance. Her daughter, Mrs. Steele, writes that “she was tall, dark hair, gray eyes, fair complexion, and had an expressive face—as can be seen from a portrait we have.” Her niece, Mrs. Smith says, “She was tall, slender, fine-looking, and as straight as an arrow.” A great-granddaughter, seeing her portrait, says, “She was a fine, intellectual-looking old lady.” Her niece, Miss Margaret H. Stewart, of Alexandria, writes, “She was pretty, amiable, and lived in finer style than any of her brothers or sisters—entertained generally. She seems to have been a favorite.” Her own kin, moreover, shared her kindness—a kindness which was heartily, though less grandly, reciprocated when she made her horseback journeys to their residences in Alexandria, Tuscarora, and elsewhere. Here, too, a home was made for her mother in her declining days.

But in the course of time this grandeur largely, if not entirely, faded away. James Horner, his grandnephew, says, “Colonel McNair indorsed heavily* for his supposed friends, lost his wealth and became poor.” The name of the town even was changed—first, to Rippeyville, from a prominent “tavern which stood on the old pike where the Penn Avenue Hotel now stands, which was kept by Samuel A. Rippey, Esq., and his wife, a sister of Mrs. McNair, and again to its present title, Wilksburg, from John Wilkins† (a brother of the Hon. William Wilkins), who became subsequently a prominent citizen, and a large landholder in the place. And, in the year 1825, Colonel McNair himself died and was buried in the Beulah churchyard. His tombstone and that of his mother are said to have nearly fallen to decay.”

The fame of his doings, however, still lingers in the memory of the town, and helps to embellish its annals. Like a dream it has vanished, and like a dream also its enchantment remains. Dumplin Hall, too, which passed, April 1, 1826, into the hands of Mark W. Collett, and August 28, 1833, into the hands of James Kelly,‡ who married Sarah Ann Horner, a niece of Colonel McNair,

* Other causes also probably aided in his downfall.

† So said by James Horner in a speech at the Horner banquet, December 23, 1896. Judge Wilkin's father's name was also John.

‡ Kelly, though quite respectable, was a singular character. He wore a queue. Dumplin Hall continued to be his home until he died September 29, 1882, and for years afterward was the home of his daughters.

continued until about 1888 to be a landmark of the region, and a relic of olden time.*

Mrs. McNair, after her financial misfortunes† and the loss of her husband, moved to Louisville, Kentucky, and there made her home with her married children; and there (at her daughter Mrs. Steele's) she died December 24, 1837. She was buried in the Western Cemetery, and a monument was erected to her memory. This monument was a stone sarcophagus, which by 1897 had gone to ruin; but the inscription was just decipherable as follows: "Sacred to the memory of Mrs. Anna McNair, widow of Colonel Dunning McNair, of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, who died December 24, 183- in the 74th year of her age." On the city's taking possession of the Western Cemetery her remains were removed (with the consent of all her heirs) in September, 1903, to Cave Hill Cemetery and re-interred in the lot belonging to her son-in-law, John W. Anderson.

She is said to have belonged to the Seceder (that is, the Associate Presbyterian) church; but probably it was the same as that to which her mother belonged.

An oil picture of her was in 1905 in the hands of a great-grandson, Andrew McNair Coyle, at Washington, D.C.

The children of Dunning and Ann Steuart McNair are:

23. David McNair was born in McNairstown (now Wilkinsburg), Pennsylvania, January 11, 1787, and died January 20, 1787
24. David Stewart McNair was born in McNairstown August 15, 1789, and died February 1, 1803. He was buried at the Beulah Presbyterian Church near his home.
25. George Harris McNair was born in McNairstown January 5, 1795. He was educated as a civil engineer. He went to Missouri, probably following the lead of his Uncle Alexander McNair, and died there, unmarried, while still a young man, although the exact date of his death is unknown.

* An account of Dumplin Hall and the McNairs was published in the Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph in 1884 and republished in the Wilkinsburg Call of June 9, 1887.

† All her property could not have been lost, for she sold a tract of land in Deer Creek Township, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, May 3, 1836, for $850. This, however, may have represented her share of her father's farm which was sold February 7, 1791, for £105.

8. JOHN McNAIR (David [1]^t) was a pioneer of Lexington, Kentucky, and was a Presbyterian elder there. He married Miss Archer (?) of Philadelphia or New Orleans (?). Their children are:

32. Margaret McNair married —— Bean and had two sons
33. Hetty McNair married Judge Lee. Their daughter, Hetty, married Holloway Lonsdale; her second husband was —— Shoemaker, of Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania.
34. Robert McNair died in the Civil War
35. Henry McNair
36. Stella McNair was married to —— McGee, of Greenville, Mississippi. Children.
37. Annie McNair was second wife of —— McGee

9. ALEXANDER McNAIR* (David [1]^t) was born May 5, 1775, on his father's farm in Milford Township, Mifflin (now Juniata) County, Pennsylvania, near the place now called Doyle's Mills.

There is little authentic information available regarding the early life of Alexander McNair. Tradition affirms that he received a fair English and classical education under a teacher named Joseph Hutchinson and that he attended the old Philadelphia college for a short time. † Some claim that he was called home from

* From Edward Brown, "Alexander McNair, First Governor of Missouri," St. Louis Catholic Historical Review, I (July-October, 1919), 231-41.

Philadelphia on account of the death of his father, and that his mother died shortly afterward; but in point of fact, the father had died when Alexander was an infant, and the mother was alive at least twenty years after the time he is said to have returned from college.*

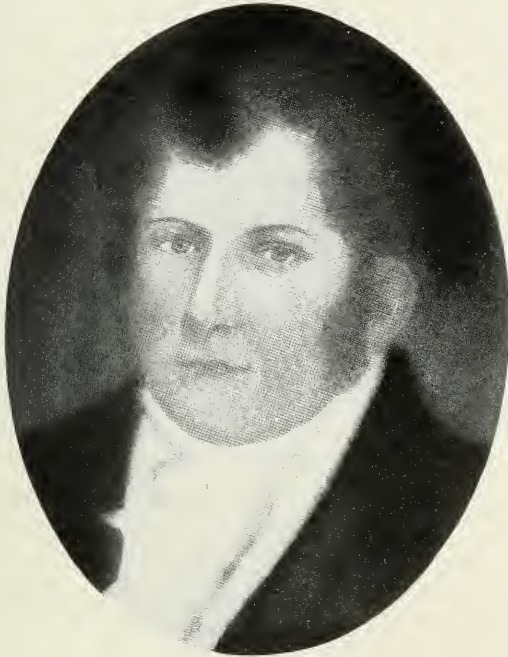

There is a story current that "after the death of their parents the sons, Dunning and Alexander, agreed to settle the paternal estate in a novel manner: that whosoever should be the victor in a fair encounter should be the owner of the homestead. Alexander received a severe whipping at the hands of his brother, to whom he afterward acknowledged he owned the honor of being Governor of Missouri."

The story is interesting, but has little semblance of truth. His parents did not die at that time, and the paternal estate had apparently been settled when the widow filed her final account as administratrix, some six or seven years previous. Nor was it the disposition of Alexander McNair to make settlement with a brother in the manner described. "Is it not possible," he writes his brother-in-law in 1813, "for brother Dunning and me to settle our business without being both present. I am willing to take anything he will give me for the land and take in payment almost anything, rather than have a dispute with a brother." Surely these are not the words of a man who would have consented to settle a difference with his brother by a fistic combat.

On April 23, 1799, through the influence of Senator MacClay of Pennsylvania, he was commissioned first lieutenant in the Provisional Army of the United States, which was organized in anticipation of war with France. He had been previously offered a commission as ensign, which he declined. He was honorably discharged at Pittsburgh, June 15, 1800, the Provisional Army having been disbanded on that date pursuant to an Act of Congress approved May 14, 1800, whereby all officers and enlisted men were honorably discharged with three months' extra pay.† Before they were disbanded the troops were reviewed by George Washington. This Governor McNair always regarded as the greatest honor of his life, especially the few words of commendation spoken to him by Washington.*

When Alexander McNair came to St. Louis in the winter of 1804, the Louisiana Territory had not been formally taken over by the United States and he was privileged to witness the historic transfer of the country's flags which took place March 10 of that year. A year later he married Marguerite Susanne, the daughter of Antoine de Reilhe, a prominent French settler. They were married in March, 1805, by John Mullanphy.†

His marriage brought him in contact with the leading French families of the Territory and through their influence he soon became prominent in public affairs. At the March, 1805, term of the Court of General Quarters Sessions of the Peace, of which Charles P. Gratiot was president, he was appointed one of the eight associate judges.

Three years later he was elected one of the five trustees for the town of St. Louis, which had been incorporated under an Act of the Territorial Legislature, June 18, 1808, authorizing the people of any village in the Territory, on petition of two-thirds of their inhabitants, to be incorporated into a town upon application to the proper court. The other trustees were: Auguste Chouteau, Bernard Pratte, Edward Hempstead, and Pierre Chouteau.

On November 5, 1810, he was appointed sheriff of St. Louis County.

His activities during these years were not altogether confined to the political field. Early in 1806 he engaged in mercantile business on his own account at the corner of Main and Pine streets, where he lived at that time. In 1811, he sold out this property, and purchased a residence on Main and Spruce streets, where he lived for a number of years. This house has been described as a double house, two rooms deep, with servants' quarters outside. The building was of logs, set upright in the old French fashion. It was surrounded by a wide veranda supported by cedar posts with a neat railing around it.* In the same year (1811), his name appeared on the tax list as the owner of one of the nineteen "carriages of pleasure" then held in the town.

The firm of McNair, Thompson & Company, on May 1, 1812, opened a business of consignments on commission and storage in the house of Madame Robidoux. It is not known how long this copartnership lasted, but the following year, when Colonel McNair was appointed Adjutant General and Inspector General of the Territorial Militia, he withdrew from the firm of McNair and Chandler and the business was continued by his partner, John Chandler.

These interruptions and changes in his business were probably caused by his engagements in the various public offices he held and from which he apparently derived little income. His business venture, however, appears to have been profitable on the whole; he had accumulated a great deal of property in a few years, although he spent money liberally in helping others. He had shared in the estate left by his father, and inherited some property from his uncle, John McNair, whose will was probated September 28, 1790, but his holdings in Pennsylvania had probably not been liquidated at the time he came to St. Louis. In a letter to his brother-in-law, James Horner, dated January 8, 1813, he says:

I have hope ahead but not much money on hand. I have a pretty good property in lands, house and lots in this place, tanyard in St. Charles, and five negroes, four large and one small, in this place. My property in this county I think worth $16,000, and you are the best judge of my property in that country, but this is what keeps me without cash, paying for property. But now I have got hold of such property

When war was declared against England in June, 1812, McNair promptly raised a company of Mounted Rangers to help defend the country against the Indian tribes that had been incited by the British to take the warpath against American settlers. He was elected captain of this company, and before leaving for the front, the organization, with Colonel Musick's company of riflemen, participated in a Fourth of July parade at St. Louis. The Declaration of Independence was read at the courthouse by Edward Hempstead, and there was an oration by Edward T. Hull.† In his letter of January 8, 1813, already mentioned, Colonel McNair makes the following reference to the campaign:

The unfortunate situation in which our country was placed last summer, having to defend itself against the Indians, made it the duty of some persons to take an active part. I being one of those persons who volunteered their services with a company of as fine fellows as ever went in the woods, which I had the honor to command, having been kept out from the middle of July until the month of October, during which time all my business lay [idle] and the expense of the company, which I had pretty much to bear for my men and trust them until they would pay me.

Within three months after he had written this letter, he was appointed Adjutant General and Inspector General of the Territorial Militia with the rank of colonel, and continued to serve in this capacity until the termination of the war with England.‡

He was commissioned United States marshal for the Territory in 1814 by President Madison, and in the same year he was a candidate for Territorial Delegate to Congress. The election was held August 1 of that year. The opposing candidate, Rufus Easton, was elected, but his small majority of less than 100 votes over McNair showed the growing popularity of the latter.

‡ He was appointed April 1, 1813, Report of Organization of Territorial Militia; original in the archives of Missouri Historical Society.

Early in 1816, when Congress established the United States Land Office for the entry of public lands, he was appointed register by President Madison for the Land District of St. Louis. This office he held until 1820, when he was elected governor of the state. At the time of his appointment as register he was associated in business with James Kennerly,* but this partnership was dissolved May 3, 1816, and the business continued by Colonel McNair on his own account through 1817, and possibly longer.

When the Territorial Legislature passed the first act for the organization of the public schools of St. Louis in 1817, he was named in the act as one of the first trustees; the other trustees were: William Clark, William C. Carr, Thomas H. Benton, Bernard Pratte, Auguste Chouteau, and John P. Cabanné.†

While the events chronicled in the foregoing pages may not have appeared, at the time of occurrence, as more than incidents in the life of Alexander McNair, Providence had disposed them in a wonderful way, as steps leading up to the crowning event of his life—his election by the people of Missouri to be the first governor of their state. The final steps were soon realized in his election early in May, 1820, as a member of the Convention that was called to frame the State Constitution, and then, a little later, his announcement as a candidate for governor. The other candidate, General William Clark, was a man of wide experience and proved ability in the administration of public affairs, both military and civil. He had served seven years as Territorial governor and was quite popular throughout the Territory.

It was a time of great confusion and excitement. The question of slavery, even in that day, disturbed the public mind. It had delayed the admission of Missouri into the Union as a state and the people took an intense interest in the campaign preceding the election. The few newspapers that were published at the time contained numerous articles in reference to the candidates. Colonel McNair received a large share of the criticism. It was held by some that he lacked education and capacity and that he did not possess the dignity of character befitting the high office of governor; that he had taken no active part in the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention during its five weeks' session. It was suggested by others that he was badly involved in debt, and had been soliciting the support of his creditors by holding out promises of speedy settlement if elected.*

Out of this mass of campaign chaff a few grains of truth might be sifted, but his exemplary personal character as well as his creditable record of service, in the many public offices he had held, was conceded by everyone. True, he did not have the advantage of a thorough education, but he was wise enough to know his limitations and his lack of book-learning was more than offset by good common sense, clear judgment, and a practical knowledge of men and things. It is not surprising that he may not have always had the ready money wherewith to meet his obligations, for it was a time when skins and peltries were commonly used as a medium of exchange; furthermore the warm heart and open hand of Colonel McNair did not lend themselves readily to an accumulation of "hard money."

The election was held August 28, 1820. It resulted in a sweeping victory for Colonel McNair, who received 72 per cent of the total votes cast.

But the joy of this great victory at the polls was quickly overcast by sorrow and bereavement at the home of Governor McNair, for the shadow of death twice crossed its threshold within a few days. On September 8, 1820, his seven-year-old son, Benjamin Howard, died, and five days later death claimed his eldest child, Stella Ann, a lovely girl of fifteen years, who had just returned from school in Kentucky. They both died of bilious (typhoid) fever, then prevalent in the country. The weight of this double blow that fell upon Governor McNair at the hour of his political triumph could be best appreciated by those who knew the deep affection he had always shown for his children.

The legislature assembled in St. Louis at its first session in the Missouri Hotel, on the corner of Main and North streets, on September 18, and Alexander McNair was duly inaugurated as first governor of the state.

It is unnecessary here to review the official acts of Governor McNair. They are matters of public record that will always stand inscribed to his memory. They have been variously commented upon, but public sentiment of that day may be best interpreted by the words of Shepard, who was in a position to know and appraise its worth. He says:

His administration had been an entire success and had given satisfaction to the people in all parts of the state, and his example was worthy of imitation. Indeed, his official career was always a success in all stations. He had filled many positions, both civil and military, in the Territorial, state, and Indian departments with credit to himself and satisfaction to the people. He owed but little to scientific training or brilliant abilities, but he possessed a sound judgment, an honest heart, and patriotic purpose from which no allurements could ever divert him.

Not only did he prove most capable and efficient in administering the affairs of the state, but he comported himself in every way with becoming dignity and grace. His residence on the east side of Broadway (then Third Street) near the present O'Fallon Street, "was the abode of hospitality, and the high school of refinement in St. Louis and Missouri, and people from all parts of the state resorted to it, as to the home of a brother and were received by his accomplished wife with the affection of a sister or a mother and made welcome to all it afforded. Information was sought and given there by politicians of all parties with the utmost freedom and kind feelings.*

Most of the legislators of the First Missouri Legislature, as well as the governor and other high dignitaries, rode to St. Charles on horseback.† The legislators of that day dressed in homespun clothes, buckskin leggings, and hunting shirts. Some wore rough shoes of their own manufacture, while others incased their feet in buckskin moccasins. Some had slouched hats, but the greater number wore caps made of the skins of wildcats and raccoons. Governor McNair was the only man who had a fine cloth coat cut in the old "pigeon-tail" style. He also wore a beaver hat, and endeavored to carry himself with the dignity becoming a man holding the highest executive position in the state.*

His long and varied record of public service did not end with his retirement from the office of governor. He subsequently received a commission in the Indian department as agent for the Osages, which position he held until the time of his death. During the winter of 1826 he contracted a severe cold while visiting his agency, and before recovering from this sickness he was seized with a malignant type of influenza,† then epidemic throughout the country, and died at his home on the morning of March 18, 1826. He was buried in the old military graveyard at St. Louis, but his remains were removed to Calvary when that cemetery was opened.

The Missouri Intelligencer of April 7, 1826, contained the following editorial, in reference to his death:

It has become our painful duty to announce the death of our late governor, Alexander McNair, in doing which we cannot refrain from joining with our fellow-citizens and the bereaved family in lamenting his loss. Governor McNair was among the first American settlers, emigrants to this country, and as an active volunteer he took the field when our frontiers were daily visited with the savage tomahawk and scalping-knife, driving from their homes the defenseless settlers. Since then and until the period of his disease, his life has been constantly devoted to his country's service. When not in the field, he has held many respectable and honorable offices in the Civil Government, and filled, at the time of his death, a very important station in the Indian Department. To the fatigues and privation incident to the last may be ascribed his death. He was unremitting in the discharge of his duties, and the distance to his agency, which he has so often visited, was so great that, although blessed with a strong constitution, the labor was more than he could bear.

* Williams, History of Northeast Missouri, I, 9.

† From all accounts the disease was similar to the "Spanish influenza" which recently visited this country with such disastrous results. It was called at the time the "great cold." In some parts of the country more than one-half of the population were affected and in many cases death resulted within 24 to 48 hours. Complications of lung fever (pneumonia) and pleurisy were frequent and usually proved fatal. The Missouri Intelligencer failed to appear April 20, 1826, and in the next issue explained, "We have all been extremely ill so as to render it impossible to attend to the duties of the office."

He was seized with the prevailing influenza, which terminated in an affection of the breast and after several days' suffering produced his death.

As a man, Governor McNair was generally esteemed by his fellow-citizens. He was a good husband, a fond parent, and a warm friend. An amiable wife and a numerous family are left to mourn his loss.

Although Governor McNair came from a family of Scotch Presbyterians and had been born and reared in a Protestant community, he died in the faith which had been so truly exemplified in the home life of his wife and children,* and received the last sacred rites of the Catholic church at his death.

In the earlier years of his St. Louis life, Captain McNair was prominent in masonic affairs. He was a member of St. Louis Lodge No. 1111, of which Meriwether Lewis, then Territorial governor, was worshipful master. On July 14, 1811, Captain McNair was chairman of the committee of arrangements for the masonic celebration of the festival of St. John the Baptist.

When the time seemed favorable, financially, for the building of the first Presbyterian church in St. Louis, Alexander McNair took active part in the movement. On January 11, 1819, a public meeting was held at the house of Rev. Salmon Giddings. The purpose was "to devise means for the erection of a Protestant house of worship." Stephen Hempstead who with eight others had organized the first Presbyterian church was chairman, Thomas H. Benton was secretary. A committee consisting of Alexander McNair, Rev. Salmon Giddings, and Judge Nathaniel Beverly Tucker was appointed to draft a subscription paper. Catholic business men of St. Louis subscribed freely, three of them $50 each. Another account of that meeting which has been handed down is that McNair presided.†

Governor McNair left a widow and eight children, the eldest eighteen and the youngest an infant of two weeks old.

* "The whole family of our Governor are practical Catholics; and the Governor himself does not miss any of our church celebrations" (letter of Du Bourg to Bruté, St. Louis, July 6, 1822. Catholic Archives of America, Notre Dame, Indiana. *Bishops and Archbishops of New Orleans*²¹).

A biographical sketch of Governor McNair would be incomplete without more than a passing reference to his accomplished and amiable wife. To her, perhaps more than to any other cause, may be attributed his remarkable advancement and success in public affairs at St. Louis. She was the guiding star that encouraged and sustained him along the toilsome path that led him onward and upward to the highest position of honor in his adopted state.

Marguerite Susanne de Reilhe was born at St. Louis, January 29, 1787. Her name appears on the baptismal records of the old Church of St. Louis, May 27, of the same year. She was the daughter of Antoine and Stella Camp de Reilhe and granddaughter of Rev. Dr. Ichabod Camp, of Amherst Parish and County, Virginia, and who is said to have been the first Episcopal minister to venture as far west as the Mississippi River. He died April 20, 1786, at Kaskaskia, "in the Illinois." Her father, Antoine de Reilhe, was born in 1735 at Montpellier, France, of a noble family, but came to St. Louis in early life and engaged in mercantile business. He was an educated gentleman of very polished manners. Madame de Reilhe died April 24, 1793, leaving Marguerite, who was then only six years old, and two younger children, Stella Marie Louise and Antoine Acain, to the care of their father. He devoted himself to the education of the children and under his careful tutorship Marguerite acquired an excellent education and manners of extreme elegance. She was versed in Spanish and English, as well as French, and spoke the three languages fluently. Her father died at St. Louis, February 25, 1802, leaving her an orphan at the age of fifteen. Three years later she married Alexander McNair. They were married at the home of her maternal aunt, Mrs. Dodge, with whom Marguerite and the other two children lived after the death of their father. Her bridal trip was to accompany her husband on horseback to Pittsburgh, where he went on business, and to visit his mother and sister, Mary (Mrs. James Horner), who lived in Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania. After some months they returned to St. Louis by boats which were taking government supplies to western posts.*

* McNair family record furnished by Stella Cabanné Walsh and other grandchildren of Governor McNair. MS in the archives of Missouri Historical Society.

Mrs. McNair survived her husband thirty-seven years. She died at St. Louis, June 17, 1863, and is buried in Calvary Cemetery at the side of her husband. She was universally esteemed and beloved for her affability and charitableness. The first female charitable society of St. Louis was organized at her home in the early part of 1824. It was the first charitable society organized in St. Louis and continued its operations, affording great relief to the poor, until the growth of the city rendered a more efficient association indispensable. Mrs. McNair was first vice-president of the society and Mrs. George F. Strother the first president.*

Elihu H. Shepard, who was intimately acquainted with the McNair family, pays the following beautiful tribute to the memory of this remarkable woman:

Mrs. McNair was first in the rank of female society in St. Louis at that time (1823) and maintained that position during her long residence here. . . . Mrs. Shepard has often said in my presence that Mrs. McNair was the most accomplished lady and most exemplary mother she had ever met with in St. Louis or elsewhere. She assisted in forming the first female charitable society in St. Louis and was one of its first officers, and other acts of her benevolence are still remembered by her old neighbors, while she has doubtless gone to reap the harvest of her labors.†

In the city of St. Louis there is little to remind us of Governor McNair beyond a weather-beaten tablet on the building at Main and Spruce streets, now occupying the site of his old residence, and an obscure street‡ in South St. Louis that bears his name.

May we not hope that the Centennial Celebration of Missouri's admission to statehood will awaken enough interest in this subject to cause the people of the state to honor in some more appropriate way the memory of their first governor?

* Shepard, Early History of St. Louis and Missouri.

† Elihu H. Shepard, Autobiography, p. 106. Shepard was a teacher of languages at the Old St. Louis College, 1823-26. He and Mrs. Shepard for a time occupied a part of the house on Main and Spruce streets in which the McNairs lived. They had been invited to share the governor's home in order that the McNair boys might be near their teacher.

‡ McNair Avenue, extending from Geyer Avenue to Arsenal Street.

There is another memorial of Governor McNair at St. Louis in addition to those above mentioned, but it may not be found without diligent search and inquiry. In the oldest section of Calvary Cemetery, near the Broadway entrance, a small headstone marks the graves of Governor Alexander McNair and his wife, Marguerite Susanne.* The grass grows greener there than elsewhere in the cemetery and the sunlight falls softly through a tracery of maple leaves. It is fitting that they should rest there side by side, near the scenes of their happy home life and of all the historic events in which they took a prominent part one hundred years ago.

The children of Alexander McNair and Marguerite Susanne de Reilhe are:

38. Stella Ann McNair was born December 20, 1805, and died September 4, 1820, of typhoid fever in St. Louis

THIRD GENERATION

26. DUNNING ROBERT McNAIR (Dunning [5]² David [1]²) was born at McNairstown, Pennsylvania, April 2, 1797. Little is reported of his early life but, judging from his subsequent history, he must have received a good education, and spent some time in or near Pittsburgh. But his tastes were rather cosmopolitan and political in their character, and after his marriage we find him living for many years at Louisville, Kentucky, engaged (so said) as a mail contractor, and afterward at Washington, D.C., where from March 17, 1853, to July 6, 1861, he filled the office of Sergeant of Arms of the Senate of the United States. And here he lived until his death in March, 1875. He was generally called Colonel, probably because of his connection at some time with the militia.

On January 2, 1826, Colonel McNair married Miss Catherine Steele, who was born at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, June 2, 1803. She was the daughter of William Steele, Esq., and Margaret (Pride) Steele.

William Steele came from the north of Ireland before the close of the eighteenth century and settled at Pittsburgh. He was a lawyer, a justice of the peace, and county treasurer. His office, as given in the Pittsburgh Directory for 1815, was on Front Street, between Market and Ferry; his dwelling on Water, between Market and Ferry. It is also said that at one time he kept a hotel at Wilksburg. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. He died December 25, 1830, in his fifty-seventh year and was buried in the graveyard of the First Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, where lies also his wife, who died March 13, 1825, in her forty-ninth year.

Catherine (Steele) McNair was a member of the Beulah Presbyterian Church, Wilksburg, Pennsylvania, but through changes in residence her name was transferred to Pittsburgh, to Louisville, and to the New York Avenue Church, Washington, D.C. She died in Alexandria, Virginia, May 6, 1869.

Dunning Robert and Catherine McNair had twelve children, but ten died in infancy. The two who reached maturity are:

48. William Steele McNair died, unmarried, in May, 1856, on the eve of his graduation from the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, at Danville, Kentucky

49. Anna Stewart McNair

27. ANNA MARIA MCNAIR (Dunning [5][†] David [1][†]) was born at "Dumplin Hall," Wilksburg, Pennsylvania, May 3, 1804.

On June 22, 1835, she was married to John Williams Anderson, then a widower having one small son, William.

J. W. Anderson was Scotch-Irish, the third son of James and Sarah Bell Anderson, and was born February 3, 1800, at the old homestead, Cool-Collet Hill, in Monaghan County, Ireland. His father was engaged in Curran's rebellion, and a price was set on his head. Under these circumstances he removed with his family in 1801 to the United States, where he settled on a farm near Braddock's Field. John W. Anderson came west when grown, to Newark, Ohio, where he engaged in business and married Elizabeth B. Runyon, but in October, 1830, he followed his elder brother James to Louisville. James had gone down to that city with a large supply of dry goods, and in 1822 had entered into a successful partnership with Mr. Benjamin Lawrence, of Jefferson County (the county in which Louisville is situated). On the arrival of John W. Anderson at Louisville he was made a member of the wholesale dry goods house of Lawrence and Anderson, and remained with his brother in this business, but under various firm names (such as Anderson, Bell and Co., Anderson, McLean and Co., etc.) for more than thirty years. He was a ruling elder and pillar of the First Presbyterian Church of Louisville.

Mr. Anderson's marriage to Miss McNair occurred several years after the death of his first wife. The second marriage lasted nearly twelve years. Anna McNair Anderson died June 15, 1847, and was buried in the Western Cemetery, but in September, 1903, her remains were removed to the newer lot of her husband in Cave Hill Cemetery. Two years after her death, Mr. Anderson married Elizabeth Gilliss. He died March 9, 1874.

The children of J. W. and Anna McNair Anderson are:

50. Dunning McNair Anderson
51. Wilkins George Anderson
52. Leven Lawrence Anderson
53. Edmund John Anderson
54. Anna Maria Anderson

28. MARGARET JANE HARRIS MCNAIR (Dunning [5]² David [1]¹) was born at "Dumplin Hall," Wilkinsburg, Pennsylvania, September 4, 1806. On November 27, 1830, she was married by

Rev. James Graham at the Beulah Presbyterian Church to Captain Robert Steele, son of William and Margaret (Pride) Steele, and brother of the wife of her brother Dunning Robert McNair.

Robert Steele, who was born in Pittsburgh, May 9, 1799, was a steamboat captain and ran vessels on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers from Pittsburgh to New Orleans. One steamboat, of which he is said to have been both proprietor and captain, was named "Homer." Not long after his marriage he moved to Louisville, Kentucky, which was a central position for his river work, and where some of his Pennsylvania friends had already settled. Subsequently he owned a steamboat supply house and later was secretary of the Franklin Insurance Co., of Louisville. His death occurred in Louisville, July 10, 1850. Mrs. Steele continued to reside in Louisville until her death, May 21, 1892. The children are:

60. ANNA MARIA STEELE (Margaret J. H. McNair [28]³ Dunning [5]² David [1]¹) was born in Louisville, September 21 (or 22), 1842. On January 13, 1876, she was married to Samuel Ramsey Wilson, who was the son of the Rev. Joshua Lacy Wilson, D.D., who in the early days of the eighteenth century was a teacher and a Presbyterian pastor of Bardstown, Kentucky, but afterward for many years was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Cincinnati, Ohio. His wife's name was Sarah Macky Wilson. Dr. S. R. Wilson was born in Cincinnati, June 4, 1818, became a communicant in the tenth year of his age, was graduated at Hanover College, Indiana, in 1836, and in Princeton Theological Seminary in 1840; he became associate minister with his father in 1841, and was ordained and installed pastor, April 26, 1842. In this church he remained twenty years—four as a colleague, sixteen as sole pastor. Afterward (1862-63) he had charge of Grand Street Church, New York City; then (1863-64) of Mulberry Church, Kentucky; then (1864-80) of the First Presbyterian Church in Louisville, Kentucky; then for two years of the Second Church of Madison, Indiana, and for two years more he labored in St. Louis, Missouri, or elsewhere, after which he retired to Louisville, where he died March 3, 1886.

The Herald and Presbyter, in noticing his death, said:

Dr. Wilson was naturally endowed with talents of the highest order. He was a natural logician, and his acquirements within the bounds of his profession were exact and thorough. As a speaker, he was fluent and free from faults in modulation, emphasis and gesture. In exegesis and doctrinal theology, he was acute and profound. As an ecclesiastic, whether as a debater or as a moderator, he had few equals. He bore a conspicuous and efficient part in the settlement of most of the great questions that came before the church and the world, even from the beginning of his ministry. In all the questions concerning slavery, in so far as they came before the church, he took the Southern side, from 1843 until the North and South divided. He was the author of the Declaration and Testimony, which divided our church in Kentucky in 1867. In a few years, however, he turned to the church north and was a member of the presbytery of Cincinnati when he died.

He was thrice married, first to Mary C., a daughter of James Johnston, and honored elder of the First Church of Cincinnati; then to Mary, a daughter of Henderson Bell, of central Kentucky; and then to Anna Steele, of Louisville, Ky. He leaves a widow and five children. His remains were buried at Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati.

The children of Dr. Wilson and Anna Steele are:

128. Dunning Steele Wilson was born November 24, 1876. He graduated from the School of Pharmacy in February, 1894, and afterward took a regular course in medicine, working his way through. For several years he has been a practicing physician in Louisville. On September 8, 1903, he married May Margaret Bonn. No children reported.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN McNAIR AND CHRISTIANA WALKER*

1. JOHN McNAIR was born in 1690. It is said that in the year 1690 or thereabouts his father left his home on the banks of the River Dee in Scotland, and went away with his family to seek a new home in the north of Ireland. Local persecution of some sort is given as the cause of this removal. They settled in Parish Taboyne, County Donegal, on what was known as the "Blanket Nuc" farm, of which they had secured a "three lives' lease." John McNair, Jr., married Christiana Walker, who was born in 1700, and settled down on this farm. It happened soon after the death of his father and the expiration of the "first life," that the parish schoolmaster was called in to regulate the family accounts. It was house-cleaning time, and so the chest† containing the papers to be examined was set out under a tree in the garden. After looking over the accounts, the "treacherous school-master Hooked and stole the deed" which secured the farm of the family during the lives of John McNair and his son William. The chest was relocked and taken to its place and the theft passed for a time without detection. The schoolmaster then "slipped over to London in England, forged a new deed and sold the same to a Squire Howard who soon sent an agent to Ireland" requiring the surrender of the property or else the procurement of a new lease. Of course the original deed was sought for and not found; and therefore, to avoid a "tedious vexatious law-suit," John McNair set sail with his family for America. It was in the year 1738. His widowed mother, who was blind, and

* This account and list of descendants have been taken from Theodore Monroe McNair's genealogy (Genealogical Record of the Descendants of John McNair and Christiana Walker, Dansville, New York, 1880), with additions by the later descendants. Therefore the addresses given are those of 1880 unless otherwise indicated. Following T. M. McNair's plan, a dagger placed after the names in this section indicates those living in 1880, but of course later information, etc., makes this not infallible.

Dansville with his brother, John L. McNair, and continued in this business for several years. He afterward moved to Scottsburg, but returned to Dansville in 1866, and became one of the incorporators of the Woodruff Paper Company, which he served for many years in the capacity of secretary and treasurer and business manager.

He died January 8, 1892, in the little village of Dansville where most of his long life had been passed. The following words were written of him by one of his fellow-townsmen. "Nearly all his life Mr. McNair was a member of the Presbyterian church, and for a quarter of a century he served as one of the ruling elders. He was a regular representative of the church at meetings of Presbytery and the General Assembly when delegates were sent, his abilities always being recognized by his being placed on important committees; his seat in the church on stated occasions of worship was never vacant unless absence from town or severe illness prevented his attendance, and in the prayer meetings he was an able assistant to the pastor. His intelligence and ability were of a high order and his piety none doubted. Of him his pastor has said: 'Mr. McNair filled a large place in the thought and affections of the people of our church and of the community at large. He was a man of rare excellence, a true friend, a wise counselor, a generous and warm-hearted brother. In his death the Presbyterian church loses a member, than whom none was more loyal and devoted.'"

He was married three times. The first wife was Mary Bradner who died when twenty-six years old, in 1846. Their children are:

- 349. Hugh Herbert McNair was born August 11, 1856, in Dansville, New York, and died March 10, 1858
- 350. Theodore Monroe McNair was born February 24, 1858, in Dansville, New York. He was a student in the well-known Temple Hill, Academy, New York, preparatory to his matriculation at Princeton University in 1875. He graduated from Princeton in 1879 in a class which is distinguished in having as its members a number of men who have filled places of honor in church and state, pre-eminent among whom stands Woodrow Wilson.

His college record may be said to have been an enviable one. Never neglecting his work, taking one of the prizes in his Junior year, he was also happy in winning signal distinction for Princeton in the athletic intercollegiate contests of 1877, 1878, 1879, against Yale and Harvard. "He was a great football player as well as an excellent student." But a higher note of praise is struck when we read: "He was said by his opponents as well as by his friends to have been always fair, brave, and honest, and respected not only for his strong playing but for his high moral tone."

After his graduation from the Theological Seminary in 1882, he spent a year in travel, visiting Japan, to which country he returned as a missionary in January, 1884. He married in Philadelphia on October 18, 1883, Annette Gregory who died February 11, 1887. They had one daughter who died in infancy. Five years later in Tokyo he married Caroline Alexander April 25, 1892. He entered upon his life-work with enthusiasm and hope, to find discipline and sorrow awaiting him.

Climatic conditions were unfavorable, and anxiety and bereavement were appointed for his earliest years. To one intense and sensitive in temperament, the exigencies of missionary experience brought, at times, their hours of depression; but throughout all these trials his courage never failed, and he gave himself unreservedly to doing with diligence whatever came to him in the way of duty.

His many and varied activities called into exercise talents latent as well as cultivated. His evangelistic work, extending over more than twenty-five years, included the care of two churches and several preaching places in Tokyo and the neighborhood, and also country work in the provinces of Chiba, Nagano, and Niigata. This often required long journeys under conditions of discomfort and risks to health almost unknown to modern travelers. A Japanese associate commenting upon this work says: "Mr. McNair's office was not that of a superintendent or director only. Each place was personally and frequently visited by him."

During eight years of this time he also served as a member of the faculty of the Maiji Gakuin (economics, history, anthropology) and assisted in the organization of the college on its present basis, planned some of its first buildings, arranged and catalogued its library, and gave himself cheerfully to the working out of other minor details that the establishment of such an institution demands. His direct connection with the college terminated in 1892, but for the last two years of his life, in addition to his literary work, he supplied the place of an absent teacher.

He was one of the promoters of the Federated Missions, regarding this as a distinct step toward the accomplishment as an ideal, undivided church of Christ. For eight years, he served as secretary. He was prominent in the organization of the National Sunday School Union of Japan, was its first foreign secretary, was on its executive committee and assisted in the conduct of the Teachers' Monthly, preparing one of the courses of study. He was also a member of the Peace Society and, until his return to America on furlough in 1910, was a member of the Board of Control of the Temperance Society. It may be added that other forms of Christian effort had his sympathy and generous support; no worthy enterprise appealed to him in vain.

His interest in the economic and social development of Japan led to his long and active membership in the Asiatic Society. He was on its Council, and for several years its corresponding secretary. He had the honor of being elected to its vice-presidency, but was prevented from filling the office by his sudden failure in health.

At a time when a sound Christian apologetic seemed to be especially needed, he made valuable contribution to the Christian literature of Japan in the translation and publication of such standard works as Gore's Incarnation of the Son of God, Beet's Through Christ to God, and Firm Foundations of the Christian Faith, Dennis' Christianity's Message to the Other Religions, and selections from McLean's Scientific Study of Christianity. His chief original works are in Exposition of the Book of Genesis (1100 pages) which was to have been one of a series on the Pentateuch; and a book on hymnology, entitled Familiar Hymns: Their Authors and Composers which, with characteristic courage and devotion, he reviewed and completed during his last illness. Its final chapter was written only two days before he died.

But his best and most lasting service was the work he was called to do on the two hymnals (church and Sunday school), which have found such wide acceptance throughout the Japanese empire. It was recognized that, as the Christian church developed, collections of hymns varying in translation and in degree of merit had been in use. Denominational lines however, were never broadly marked in Japan, and union meetings increasingly came to be a part of the Christian life and work. For these a uniform translation of the hymns was a necessity and it is generally agreed that the hymnals, from their first issue in 1904, have met one of the greatest needs of the growing church. As secretary and treasurer of a Union Committee, Mr. McNair was intrusted with the general management of compiling and preparing the hymnals for publication, and their great success is acknowledged to have been due to his fine musical taste, good judgment, and unremitting labor. It has been said: "In the Christianization of a people there are two works of surpassing value; the translation of the Scriptures and the making of a hymnbook. In the great hymns of the church we find, as hardly elsewhere, the Christian faith mediated through the experiences of the heart." This estimation indicates something of the responsibility which attended the effort to prepare an acceptable and helpful collection of hymns for use by the Japanese people. The Christian church in Japan is still in its youth. It has not yet attained the experience which makes possible the expression of its faith in great original hymns. Like the church in the West, it will, for a long time to come, find some of its best incentives to praise in the hymns of the church of the ages. The transmutation of the poetic religious thought and aspirations of the West into those of the East, and into a versification of various meters unfamiliar to the Japanese poet, and further, into a diction which must be adaptable to the stress, or emphasis, of the rythm of foreign song, was a task in itself. The mechanical part of the work also presented its peculiar difficulties. Printing music in staff-notation is still one of the developing arts of Japan and required vigilant supervision. In addition a vast correspondence was necessary to secure copyright privileges from authors and composers, or their representatives. Even one acquainted with all the details of hymnbook-making can hardly realize the difficulties, or rightly measure the time and painstaking effort such an undertaking demanded in Japan where the services of experts were not available.

The several editions through which these hymnals have passed now represent a distribution of more than 300,000 copies. They contain 750 of the most inspiring, helpful Christian hymns, each accompanied by an appropriate verse of Scripture. A declaration of Christian belief is also given in the Apostles' Creed, together with a standard for Christian living in the Ten Commandments, and an aid of devotion in the Lord's Prayer. A complete index of authors and composers gives an additional interest in recent issues. A collection of 400 hymns in English was also prepared for use with the music in the Japanese books. Besides the use of these books by the Christian community, their remarkably large circulation has also carried the gospel message to non-Christian hearts and into non-Christian homes. He has left an imperishable work; his is a memory that will live on in many lives.

He will also be long remembered as having been gifted with a beautiful voice which he used unsparingly in the service of his Master. His last public effort—made in conscious weakness—was to fulfil his promise to sing at one of the special meetings of the Evangelistic Campaign.

His life was one of unresting activity. The continuity of nearly thirty-two years of service was broken only by two furloughs and “vacations” were practically unknown to him. Change of scene and of air meant to him only better conditions in which to do the work he had in hand. Even during weary months of failing health his chief solace was to accomplish his daily task. The energy of his spirit was never quenched. After increased suffering, he died in Tokyo November 21, 1915.

163. WILLIAM WOODBRIDGE MCNAIR* (William Wilson [48]⁴ Hugh [9]³ William [2]² John [1]¹), was born at Groveland, Livingston County, New York, on January 4, 1836. He received his education from private tutors and the academies of Genesee and Canandaigua. When nineteen years old, he came West and entered the law office of Judge J. P. Doolittle at Racine, Wisconsin, but after two years came to Minneapolis, in 1857. He was admitted to the bar during the same year, and for twenty-seven years remained in active practice in this city. From 1861 to 1868, Mr. McNair was associated with the late Eugene M. Wilson under the firm name of Wilson & McNair, and upon Mr. Wilson's election to Congress in 1868, he formed a partnership with Judge William Lochren as Lochren & McNair. J. B. Gilfillan was later admitted to this firm, which for many years was the leading law firm of the city. After Judge Lochren's appointment to the district bench in 1881, the business was continued by McNair & Gilfillan until Mr. Gilfillan's election to Congress in 1884, when on account of impaired health, Mr. McNair retired from active business. During his long practice in Minneapolis, he was connected with much important litigation and was considered one of the strongest lawyers at the bar. Although much engaged with his work, he was deeply interested in public affairs, but though frequently importuned to accept office,

* This account is adapted from Horace B. Hudson, A Half Century of Minneapolis, p. 152 (Hudson Publishing Co., 1908).

on only a few occasions consented to public service. For four years prior to 1863, he was county attorney, and in 1868 was elected one of the school directors of St. Anthony. In 1869, he was elected mayor of St. Anthony and continued at the head of the city government until the consolidation of St. Anthony and Minneapolis in 1872. He affiliated with the Democratic party and, against his wishes, received the nomination for Congress in 1876 and was complimented by a vote which largely reduced the usual Republican majority in the district. In 1883, he was tendered the nomination for governor, but positively declined. A business man of unusual ability, Mr. McNair's name was connected with many of the successful enterprises of his time, including the Minneapolis Gas Light Company and the Minneapolis Street Railway Company, in each of which he was one of the original incorporators. He was also an original stockholder and director in the Minneapolis & St. Paul Railroad, and was extensively interested in lumbering and contracting for timber supply for the northwestern railroads. Being strongly impressed with the future of the city, he invested very largely in real estate in and about Minneapolis. Mr. McNair possessed fine social qualities and the most genial and generous disposition. He was married on August 21, 1862, to Louise Wilson, daughter of Edgar C. Wilson of Virginia, and sister of the late Eugene M. Wilson, of Minneapolis. Mr. McNair died September 15, 1885. They had two children:

DESCENDANTS OF SAMUEL McNAIR AND ANNA MURDOCK*

1. SAMUEL McNAIR was born in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1699. His father, James McNair, was driven from Scotland into Ireland during the persecution, in the reign of Charles II of England. Samuel McNair married Anna Murdock, and with his family and father-in-law, then eighty years of age, came to America in 1732 and landed at Bristol, Pennsylvania. They passed the first winter in an old schoolhouse around which the wolves howled at night. In the ensuing spring they settled in Upper Makefield Township, Bucks County. There is no record that this Samuel McNair ever owned land, but his eldest son James bought a farm in Upper Makefield Township containing 189 acres and 50 perches for which he paid £426, 16s., 10d., the deed being given by the Penn Land Co., of London, October 12, 1762.

Samuel McNair was a member of the Newtown Presbyterian Church. He died in 1761 and was buried in the old churchyard about three-fourths of a mile from the present site of the Newtown Presbyterian Church. This old graveyard was abandoned many years ago, but the headstone of Samuel McNair was removed to the new graveyard by his great grandson, James Slack McNair who lived and died at Richboro, Pennsylvania. In 1895 it was found by A. D. McNair placed back to back against the headstone of James McNair, his son.

The children of Samuel McNair and Anna Murdock are:

2. James McNair
3. Anna McNair
4. Samuel McNair
5. Solomon McNair
6. Rebecca McNair

* From data by Albert Düy McNair (272). A chart published by Rev. James L. McNair (165) in 1878 giving the records from 1732 to 1878 was also used.

FREDERICK VALLETTE McNAIR (1839-1900)
Rear Admiral, United States Navy

States; Navy department, October, 1882, till October, 1883; court of inquiry on loss of U.S. ship "Jeanette" and board of examiners of officers, etc., Mare Island Navy Yard, November, 1883, till September, 1886, captain of the yard; commanding U.S. flag ship "Omaha," May, 1897, till March, 1890, Asiatic station; superintendent of Naval Observatory, June, 1890, till November, 1894; retiring and examining boards, November, 1894, till November, 1895; commanding U.S. naval force on Asiatic station, December, 1895, till January, 1898, U.S. flag ship "Olympia"; president, retiring and examining boards, February, 1898; March, 1898, chairman lighthouse board, and superintendent of Naval Academy, July, 1898, till relieved by Commander Richard Wainwright.

Rear Admiral McNair for three years, prior to being relieved by Admiral Dewey, commanded the American naval forces on the Asiatic station, and to him belongs much of the credit for the victories in Manila Bay.

It was by his persistent drilling and careful instruction that the gunners of the Asiatic squadron had been brought to so high a grade of proficiency, a prime factor, as Admiral Dewey has himself declared, in the satisfactory result of the first and greatest contest of the war. To Rear Admiral McNair must be given much of the credit for the excellent condition of the vessels that Admiral Dewey was called to command.

Rear Admiral McNair had as varied an experience and left as brilliant a record as any American naval officer of the present day. He held his stations in almost every part of the world, and was an eyewitness and student of several European contests. He was with Garibaldi in Italy, and his mind was well stored with the scientific principles of war. He was in active service throughout the Civil War, and during those bloody years won glory enough for one life. His death, November 28, 1900, in Washington, created a vacancy at the top of the list of active rear admirals in the American Navy.

He married Clara Warren on October 9, 1862. She was the daughter of James William Warren and Mary Sellars Hobson, and was born May 22, 1841, in Philadelphia. She died in Annapolis, Maryland, May 10, 1922. Children:

208. WILLIAM SHARP MCNAIR (David [112]⁵ William [42]⁴ Solomon [8]³ James [2]² Samuel [1]¹) was born in Tecumseh, Michigan, September 18, 1868. He was graduated from the public high school of Tecumseh, Michigan, in 1886. He was appointed a cadet at the United States Military Academy from the Second District of Michigan in 1886, after a competitive examination with twelve competitors.

He was graduated from the Military Academy June 12, 1890, ranking twenty-third in the class. He was appointed second lieutenant of artillery and assigned to the Third Artillery at Washington Barracks, D.C.

His military record follows:

He served with the Third Artillery as lieutenant until 1901: at Washington Barracks, 1890-91; Fort McHenry, Maryland, 1891-92; Fort Barrancas, Florida, 1892-94; Fort Monroe, Virginia, 1894-96; San Francisco Harbor, 1896-1900. He was promoted first lieutenant in 1898.

He had charge of the mounting of all guns in the defense of San Francisco Harbor from 1898 to 1900, and was with the China Relief Expedition in China, 1900, and in the Philippine Islands, 1900-1903.

He campaigned in Southern Luzon in the fall of 1900 and spring of 1901, when he was promoted to captain, participating in the capture of General Trias in Cavite Province. He later commanded an independent detachment in pursuit of General Malvar and the insurrectos in Batangas Province.

He organized the first mountain battery in the service. This was the Twenty-fifth Battery which later became Battery C, Sixth F.A., which fired the first shot in France.

WILLIAM SHARP McNAIR (1868—)
Major General, United States Army

He commanded the Artillery in the Lake Lanao Expedition under General F. D. Baldwin and General John J. Pershing from April, 1902, to April, 1903, participating with the battery in all engagements during that time including the battle of Pandapatan, and returned to the United States with the battery in June, 1903.

Then he served three months at the Springfield Arsenal as a member of a board for testing new automatic machine guns for the service. He reorganized and trained the Twenty-fifth Battery at Fort Riley, Kansas, as a light battery. On reorganization of the artillery in 1907 he became regimental quartermaster, and served as member of the board for purchase of remounts for the army.

He served five years as recorder and member of the Field Artillery Board, 1908 to 1913.

As major, being promoted in 1910, he commanded the Second Battalion, Sixth F.A., and at various times commanded the regiment until 1913 when he was detailed as student officer in the Army War College, and graduated from there in 1914.

He served on the Mexican border in command of the Second Battalion, Sixth F.A., and in command of the Sixth F.A. until November, 1914. He attended the Field Officers Course at the School of Fire for field artillery, November and December, 1914.

In December, 1914, he was detailed in the Inspector-Generals' department, and assigned to duty in the office of the Inspector-General as inspector of field artillery. In June, 1916, was relieved from duty in the Inspector-Generals' department in order to accept a commission as brigadier general in command of the Artillery Brigade of the Twenty-seventh (New York) National Guard Division. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel, June 23, 1916, and to colonel, July 1, 1916.

He commanded the Artillery Brigade, Twenty-seventh (New York) Division during the entire time of its mobilization on the Mexican Border to January, 1917, and then commanded the Sixth F.A. at Douglas, Arizona. He organized the Tenth and Eleventh Regiments of field artillery out of the Sixth, reorganized and trained the Sixth F.A. and took it to France July, 1917.

He was promoted to brigadier general, National Army, August, 1917, and commanded the Artillery Brigade of the First Division in its early training and pending receipt of orders from Washington which assigned him to command the One Hundred Fifty-first F.A. Brigade of the Seventy-sixth Division then being organized at Camp Devens, Massachusetts.

He left France for the United States, October 13, 1917, on the "Antilles" which was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine, October 17, 1917. He was rescued by the "Corsair" and taken back to France, and embarked again, November 1, and arrived in the United States, November 17, 1917.

After organizing and training the One Hundred and Fifty-first Field Artillery Brigade, he took it to France July, 1918, arriving August, 1918, and commanded the Posac Area and Camp de Sone, France, until September 20, 1918.

He was promoted to major general August, 1918.

He was present as an observer at the taking of the St. Mihiel salient September 12-13 and 14, 1918. Reporting to the Commanding General of the Army Artillery, First Army, for duty September 24, 1918, he was present in the battle area with the First Army during the whole of the Argonne Meuse offensive. He was assigned as Chief of Artillery of the First Corps, October 28, 1918, and took over the duties from Brigadier General S. Welch, French Army, at 6 A.M., November 4, 1918.

On November 18, 1918, he assumed command of the Army Artillery and became Chief of Artillery of the First Army.

He returned to the United States April 20, 1919, arriving May 2, 1919, and commanded Camp Taylor and Camp Knox, Kentucky, from May, 1919, to October 1, 1919. He commanded Camp Bragg, North Carolina, October 9, 1919, until August, 1920, and was honorably discharged as major general March 15, 1920.

He was designated a member of the initial General Staff eligible list and detailed as member of the War Department, General Staff, August 25, 1920.

His education was received in the private schools of Washington, D.C., and St. Austin's Military Boarding School. He entered the United States Naval Academy June 23, 1899, and graduated February 2, 1903. He was presented with a sword by the United States Navy Athletic Association for being the best all-round athlete in the class of 1903. The following is his record in the United States Navy:

He was first ordered to duty on the U.S.S. "Brooklyn," flagship on the European station, and was a member of landing force of that vessel which protected foreign interests in Beirut, Syria, during the religious riots of July, 1903, at Beirut.

He joined the U.S. destroyer "Chauncey" in the Mediteranean Sea, which was one of the five destroyers to make the first around-the-world trip ever made by a United States destroyer, arriving at Manila, Philippine Islands, April 14, 1904.

He served on the U.S.S. "Oregon," 1904-5, when that vessel held the Battleship Gunnery Trophy of the navy for two years, and served on the "Oregon" and cruiser "Raleigh" during the final years of reconstruction in the Philippines with sporadic fighting among Moros. He was present on the "Raleigh" at the New Year's rioting in Shanghai, China, in January, 1906.

In 1908 he was with the U.S.S. "Prairie" on West Indian duty, and company commander of the "Prairie's" battalion at Colon, Panama, during the Panamanian elections of 1908.

He was commander of the First Submarine Division operating on the Atlantic Coast in 1909 and 1910.

On the Naval Torpedo Station, Newport, he was in charge of Torpedo Range and practical experimental work in 1911 and 1912, and a member of the United States Olympic Games team of 1912.

In 1913 he was in command of the cruiser, U.S.S. "Chester."

He was ordered as gunnery officer, U.S. battleship "New Jersey," October, 1913, and acted as liason officer and in command of the "New Jersey's" battalion ashore during ten months of Mexican service, and was in Tampico, December, 1913, during battle between Huerta and Villa forces, when 275 American refugees were taken aboard the "New Jersey." He commanded the "New Jersey" battalion of 340 officers and men at the capture of Vera Cruz, April 22-24, 1914, and in defense of the city for ten days following the capture prior to arrival of United States Army Expeditionary Force. He was awarded the Mexican Campaign Medal by the navy department and the Congressional Medal of Honor by Congress for Vera Cruz.

He commanded the U.S. destroyer "Jenkins," 1914-15, in war maneuvers. He had a letter of commendation for handling the "Jenkins" in the gale of October, 1914, from the commander-in-chief.

He was instructor in the United States Naval Academy from 1916 to October, 1917.

He was ordered overseas to Queenstown, destroyer flotilla, October, 1917, and commanded the U.S. destroyer "Winslow" during 1917 and 1918, operating against German submarines in the Irish Sea, British Channel, French Coast, and as escort commander of destroyers for the United States troop convoys into France and England. On January 3, 1918, he attacked, sunk, and destroyed a German submarine off Small's in the Irish Sea. Returning to the United States in July, 1918, he took command of the new destroyer "Woolsey," and returned with it to the European war zone. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the world-war medals.

During Armistice 1918-19 he was ordered as destroyer division commander of the Thirteenth Destroyer Division, which escorted President Wilson to and from Europe in the "George Washington" during the League of Nations negotiations. He also was division commander of destroyers carrying Armistice committees to the various German, British, and French ports, and destroyer flotilla commander in European waters, Brest, France.

In 1919-20, he commanded the Thirty-sixth Destroyer Division and the Second Destroyer Flotilla of three destroyer divisions in West Indian waters, and was commissioned commander, United States Navy, September 21, 1920.

He is the author of Handbook for Naval Officers. From 1921 to 1922, he was Captain of the Port, Cristobal, Canal Zone, under the governor of the Panama Canal.

DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS McNAIR AND ANN WALLACE AND MARY STRAIN*

1. THOMAS McNAIR (or McNear) was born in 1737 in the Parish of Donaghmore, County Donegal, Ireland. His ancestors were the Scotch McNairs who migrated to Ireland (see church certificate below). According to a letter written by Robert McNear to his brother Thomas and dated at Belnacor May 15, 1791, there were the following brothers and sister in Donaghmore: Elizabeth McNear who was married and had a daughter; Robert McNear (the writer of the letter); and William McNear, a business man, who was married and died before May 15, 1791, and had children. Thomas McNair came to America and acquired 165 acres of land in Hanover Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, according to a warrant dated March 1, 1760. This date is the date interest commences and that may have been years after a permanent improvement had been made. He bought some land May 10, 1771, situated in Hanover Township, from Moses Wallace. According to the assessment list of Hanover Township in 1784, he possessed 150 acres, one negro, three horses, four cows, value $23,700.

In partnership with James Wilson he purchased by warrant 129 $\frac{1}{4}$ acres in Hanover Township February 12, 1785, and he alone purchased by warrant 201 $\frac{3}{4}$ acres in Hanover Township February 12, 1785. This would make a total of at least 496 acres of land owned entirely or in part by Thomas McNair. At the time of his death he owned 130 acres of land.

Besides being a land owner Thomas McNair was a cooper and a distiller.

A certificate of character and of church membership, signed by Rev. Benjamin Holmes and dated Donaghmore, August 20, 1762, states that: "Thomas McNair was born and educated in this parish, is descended of an ancient Protestant family deservedly esteemed in their country, has industriously followed his business, always maintained an unexceptionable moral character and was admitted to church privileges with us." He maintained his religious industry in the new country where he became affiliated with the Derry Church. His name appears on a subscription list for the payment of the graveyard wall in 1771, and at the time of his death he was an elder. According to Thomas Speer McNair he was a freemason as well.

He was a soldier in the Revolution and assisted in covering the retreat of Washington in the Jerseys. He rendered active service also during the campaign around Philadelphia, Trenton, and Princeton.*

Thomas McNair was twice married, first on May 9, 1771, to Ann Wallace who was born March 15, 1748, the daughter of Robert Wallace and Mary Clyde and sister of Brigadier General James Wallace.† She died September 22, 1793, in Hanover.

Thomas McNair's second wife was Mary Strain who was born in Hanover in 1758. She died October 22, 1821, in Hanover. He died July 25, 1830, in Hanover, from apoplexy. He was buried in the old Derry Church graveyard with his first and second wives and children.

The children of Thomas McNair and Ann Wallace are:

2. Mary McNair was born June 17, 1772, and died December 2, 1774
3. Martha McNair
4. Robert McNair was born May 13, 1777, and died, unmarried, previous to July 27, 1801, in San Domingo, of yellow fever
5. William McNair
6. James McNair was born January 13, 1783, and died October 1, 1799
7. Moses McNair
8. Ann McNair was born August 17, 1787, and died, unmarried, May 28, 1841, near Berwick, Pennsylvania, from pulmonary tuberculosis. She is buried in Berwick Cemetery.
9. Thomas McNair

The children of Thomas McNair and Mary Strain are:

10. John Andrew McNair was born May 13, 1797. He probably went to Ohio from Pennsylvania after November, 1831, as there

SECOND GENERATION

3. MARTHA MCNAIR (Thomas [1]^t) was born August 12, 1774, in Hanover Township, Lancaster (now Dauphin) County, Pennsylvania. She was married to Samuel Sturgeon, a "clock and watchmaker." He was the son of Samuel Sturgeon (died in 1801) who served in the Revolution. Records show that on March 13, 1776, he was private in Captain James Murray's company, Fourth Battalion, "The Associaters," under Colonel James Burd, a Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, regiment. Martha McNair died after an illness of four days at Shippensburg, Pennsylvania, January 11, 1803, and is buried in the Presbyterian burial ground at Shippensburg. Children:

13. Ann Sturgeon was married to William Peale (a widower with children?), and among several children one was a Mrs. Snodgrass, of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, of whom is descended Frank Peale Snodgrass, of Harrisburg.
14. Margaret Sturgeon was married in October, 1838, to Hon. Louis Heck who was a member of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania from Dauphin County for 1860. They had at least one daughter.

5. WILLIAM MCNAIR (Thomas [1]^t) was born May 24, 1870, in Hanover Township. He was dismissed from the Derry Church by Rev. J. R. Sharon, February, 1823, as a non-communicant, and probably went west to Ohio the same year, and settled near Dayton. He was a farmer and took his family to church in his two-horse wagon. The farm is now (1917) known as the

William Brown farm. One of the Brown daughters, Mrs. Clark Trumber (?) lives on it.

William McNair was made a Master Mason of Lodge No. 101, Palmstown (Palmyra) Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, July 28, 1808. On November 29, 1811, he served as junior warden. On July 1, 1816, at a meeting of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania, William McNair, as a member of Lodge No. 101 who paid "the Grand Treasurer all arrears due from him to the said Lodge No. 101, up to the time the same was vacated, was fully reinstated in his former standing as a member of the fraternity." He, however, according to the incomplete records in the Grand Lodge of Ohio, apparently did not become a member of St. John's Lodge No. 13, Dayton, Ohio, the only lodge in or near Dayton in 1830 or early forties.

On June 16, 1829, he married Edith Bartles. He died October 23, 1842, near Dayton, Ohio, and is buried in the Bath Church graveyard. Mrs. McNair died September 2, 1872. Their children are:

15. Margaret McNair
16. Thomas B. McNair was born October 23, 1832. In the Civil War, he served with the Eleventh Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry. He married Rachel Overmier, of Columbus, Ohio, who was born in 1839. They had one daughter, Fannie B. McNair who lives at Long Beach, California. Thomas B. McNair died November 28, 1908, at Marion, Indiana, and his wife died in 1914. They are both buried in the I.O.O.F. Cemetery at Marion.
17. John McNair was born August 25, 1835. During the Civil War, he served with the Eleventh Regiment, Ohio Calvary. He died, unmarried, July 15, 1877.
18. William McNair, Jr.
19. Anna Mary McNair, a twin of William, was born May 17, 1838, and died November 5, 1855
20. James W. McNair was born May 27, 1841. He was a sergeant of Company A, One Hundred Tenth Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and was killed October 19, 1864, at the battle of Cedar Creek, Virginia. He is buried in the Bath Church graveyard beside his parents.

7. MOSES MCNAIR (Thomas [1]^t) was born June 11, 1785, in Hanover Township. He became a member of the Derry Church, May 31, 1807, but moved to the Mud River country, Ohio, in 1811. Previous to May 23, 1813, he married Martha Williamson. He died October 24, 1824, after an illness of eleven days of which vomiting was a symptom. In April, 1832, Mrs. McNair and the children resided at New Carlisle, near Fairfield, Ohio. After the death of her husband, Mrs. McNair was married to —— Fenn on May 11, 1836. The children of Moses McNair and Martha Williamson are:

21. Thomas McNair was a physician who settled in St. Louis, Missouri, married, and had children. He died February 6, 1885.
22. Ann McNair
23. Edith McNair was twice married. Her second husband was —— Webster, and there were children.
24. Margaret McNair

9. THOMAS MCNAIR (Thomas [1]^t) was born March 10, 1790, in Hanover Township. He married, December 7, 1819, Agnes (Nancy) Ferguson who was born March 14, 1795, in Hanover. She was the daughter of David Ferguson and Jean (Henderson) Rogers.*

Thomas McNair and his wife became members of the Derry Church May 21, 1820, and were dismissed from that congregation April 29, 1837, just previous to their removal to Foundryville, Columbia County, Pennsylvania. On July 30, 1839, they "presented a regular certificate from the church at Derry, bearing date of May 2, 1837, which was received as entitling them to the privileges of free communion with this church [Berwick Presbyterian] inasmuch as they had no previous opportunity of presenting it."

Thomas McNair served his country during the War of 1812 with the army around Baltimore, Maryland, and after the war as captain of militia. As a business man, we find him a director in the Bank of Middletown, a contractor for building part of the Pennsylvania Canal and the Tidewater (?) Canal, and then in partnership with Robert Rogers in the merchandise business from April 16, 1825, to June 1, 1835.† They had two stores in Lebanon

County (one in Bellevue) in 1826, and one in Middletown in 1827.* After the withdrawal of Rogers from the firm, McNair became a partner of John Hicks. There are rent receipts of McNair & Rogers from 1826 to June 13, 1836, for a store rented from George Etter, and for 1836 of McNair & Hicks. There are rent receipts of McNair & Rogers from Abner Crole from April, 1828, to April, 1833. There is a receipt of McNair & Rogers for payment of county poor and road tax from 1828 to 1832 inclusive on a lot of ground formerly owned by John Long in Lebanon County. McNair's half-interest in the firm was sold out to John Hicks June 13, 1836.

Upon the death of his father July 25, 1830, Thomas McNair fell heir to 130 acres of farm land. He also owned a 130 acre farm in West Hanover adjoining one of his father's which he leased to William Smith January 1, 1830. This he released to Joseph Waltman, December 23, 1833, to John Oakes, November 29, 1834, and sold to Rev. J. R. Sharon previous to July 11, 1840.

In 1837 he became interested in an iron foundry (Columbia Furnace) at Foundryville, near Berwick, Pennsylvania, in conjunction with Senator Simon Cameron and Samuel F. Headley, M.D. The firm was known as McNair & Co. Headley withdrew from the corporation February 2, 1838, and his share was taken over by the remaining two members of the firm. On March 11, 1837, McNair bought 175 acres of land at Foundryville from George Mack. On the same day he bought also from George Mack 5 acres of land, a cupola furnace, a machine shop, blacksmith shop, store, and dwelling house, other buildings, 8 acres of land on which was erected a log house, a frame barn; 4 acres of land with a dwelling house; 1 acre of meadow; 100 acres with grist mill, a saw mill, and two dwelling houses, eight horses, three cows, two coal wagons, one canal boat, etc. The firm bought 404 acres from Robert McCurdy April 12, 1837. When Headley withdrew from the firm February 2, 1838, he transferred his interest in 400 acres of wild land on Nob Mountain near the head of Shickshinney Valley to the firm and the firm conveyed to Headley a tract of land. In 1839 the Nescopeck Forge was purchased and the firm's name changed to Humes, McNair & Co. McNair & Co. made at least part of the "N track" and castings for the Columbia and Philadelphia Railroad.*

During the early forties McNair had a general merchandise store in Berwick. On April 1, 1844, he leased for three years from H. Seybert a brick tavern house situated on the corner of Front and Market streets, now known as the St. Charles Hotel, together with its appurtenances, stables, outbuildings, and 18 acres of lots.

Thomas McNair took a live interest in civic affairs. He served as postmaster at Foundryville from July 10, 1837, to January 4, 1844, as a trustee of the Berwick Academy over an undetermined period (at least from November 5, 1839, to November 18, 1841), and was elected chief burgess of Berwick April 11, 1846.

He died July 23, 1847, at Berwick, Pennsylvania, of cholera, contracted while on a visit to Tennessee just previous. He is buried in Berwick Cemetery as is his wife who died July 20, 1848. Their children are:

25. Jane Ferguson McNair

26. Ann Wallace McNair was born July 29, 1822, at Hanover Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania, and died August 3, 1824

27. Thomas Speer McNair

28. Ann Mary McNair was born September 12, 1827, and died at Hazleton, Pennsylvania, unmarried, October 25, 1897

29. David Henderson McNair

30. William Edwards McNair was born January 4, 1834. He was a Master Mason of Carbon Lodge No. 242, Ancient York Masons, Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania. On November 11, 1856, he received degrees of Mark, Most Excellent and Royal Arch degrees in the Lilly Royal Arch Chapter No. 181, Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania. He was a printer. He died August 6, 1857, unmarried, and is buried at Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania.

31. James Sharon McNair

12. ROBERT WALLACE MCNAIR (Thomas [1]^t) was born August 19, 1800, in Hanover Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania.

* Data obtained from the records of royalties paid to Britton M. Evans for the use of his U.S. patent No. 1442, issued December 27, 1839, for railway chair (fish plate).

He was a printer and served at least part of his apprenticeship in the Chronicle office at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, under Mr. Gilmore in 1817. August, 1824, finds him working in Metcalf's printing office in Cambridge, Massachusetts. Before this he was in Philadelphia. Previous to March 21, 1826, while still a resident of Cambridge he was elected a member of the Old Fellows of Boston. At an anniversary meeting (January 17, 1826) of the Typographical Society he acted as vice-president.

He married Eliza Hathway. She had at least three brothers-in-law, Mr. Smith, a resident of South Boston, and a Mr. Wheeler who lived about 7 miles from Boston. Robert Wallace McNair died before 1837 (exact date unknown, but a few years after his marriage) at Boston, and is buried there. In 1848 "Mrs. McNair and her daughter were living with her brother-in-law, Mr. Holland, and were very comfortably situated." The only child is:

18. WILLIAM MCNAIR, JR. (William [5]² Thomas [1]¹) was born May 17, 1838. He married Anna Landon, of Piqua, Ohio, who died September 7, 1920, aged seventy-one years. He served in Company C, One Hundred Forty-seventh Ohio Regiment, during the Civil War. He died May 6, 1921. There is one child:

37. Robert McNair

22. ANN MCNAIR (Moses [7]² Thomas [1]¹) was married in October, 1836, to George Mossier, a Merchant of Fairfield, Ohio. Their children are:

38. Buena Ella Mossier

39. ———Mossier, a son, died in childhood

24. MARGARET MCNAIR (Moses [7]² Thomas [1]¹) was married to James McCord, of St. Louis, Missouri, and they have one child:

40. Edna McCord

25. JANE FERGUSON MCNAIR (Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]¹) was born October 5, 1820, in Hanover Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania. Of her religious life, the following is given: She was baptized January, 1821, and joined the Derry Church September 16, 1838. She was dismissed from this church May 20, 1839, and joined the Berwick Presbyterian Church, July 30, 1839, where she taught in the Sunday school. She was dismissed from the Berwick church March 29, 1850, to Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania.

On May 5, 1841, she was married to William Wilson Righter, M.D., son of John Righter and Euphemia Wilson. In 1850, they moved to Mauch Chunk. During the cholera epidemic in Beaver Meadow, Pennsylvania, in 1854, Dr. Righter died. After his death, Mrs. Righter engaged in the drug business until 1860, when she was appointed postmistress of the town until 1880. Her drugstore was on Broadway where Judge J. W. Heberling's store was located in 1891. She died from pneumonia May 26, 1891, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. Children:

41. Annie M. Righter was married to W. W. Weaver. She died at Mauch Chunk.

42. Euphemia Righter

43. Thomas McNair Righter

44. John McFee Righter married and had children. He was connected with the Union Pacific Railroad.

27. THOMAS SPEER MCNAIR* (Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]¹) was born October 13, 1824, in Hanover Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania. The following is a chronological outline of his life:

In 1834 (10 years old) he went to Middletown Academy to Mr. Dennis who claimed to be a Yale graduate. Among his associates were George Mitchell, Brua, and Senator Donald Cameron. The first book he studied was Weem's Washington and he committed it all to memory.

* See Transactions of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, XXXIII, xxv, xxix; XXXIV, xxviii, xli.

In 1837 (13 years old) he moved to Foundryville, Pennsylvania. He attended school there and then went to Berwick Academy where his first teacher was Rittenhouse, a graduate of Princeton College and Seminary; Rittenhouse was a fine scholar, especially in mathematics. Had the congressional district been of different political complexion he would probably have gone to West Point. Receipted bills for tuition for Thomas S. McNair at Berwick Academy have been found covering the period from 1839 to March 30, 1841.

In the spring of 1844 (19 years old) he moved from Foundryville to Berwick. Beginning September 16, 1844, he taught school at Beaver Meadow.

From August 16, 1845 (20 years old) to October, 1846, he was a student at Williams College, Massachusetts. On November 31, 1845, he was taken sick with typhoid fever while at Williamstown, Massachusetts.

On July 23, 1847 (22 years old) his father died.

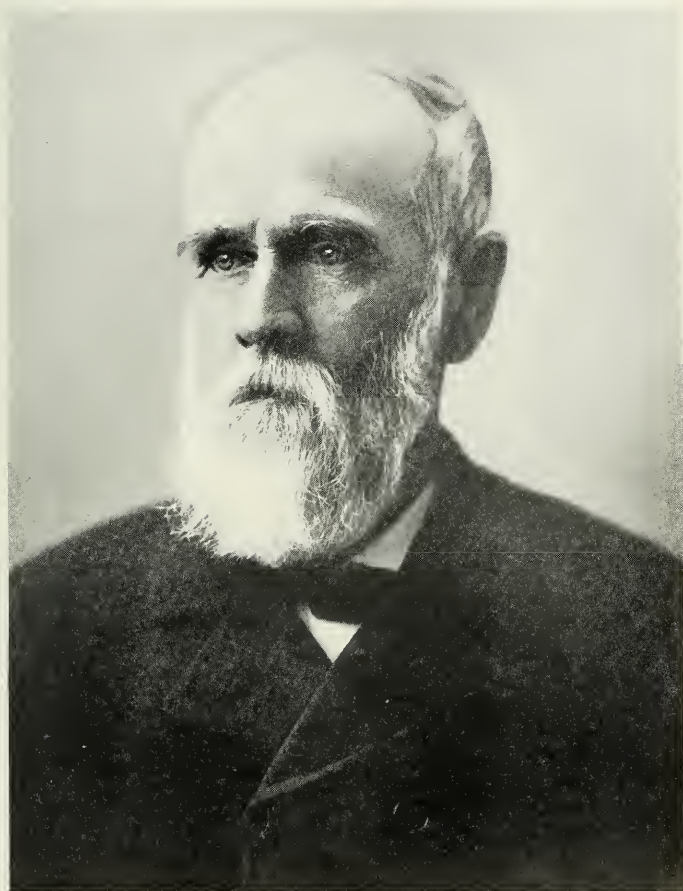

On July 20, 1848 (23 years) his mother died. On September 10, 1848, he gave Stedman possession of the St. Charles Hotel, Berwick, which had been leased by his father in 1844. On October 10, 1848, and November 3, 1848, he surveyed the distance and level of the spring on the land of A. Jamison, Esq., Berwick; the corps was Thomas S. McNair, Perry Kitchen, E. A. Wilson, S. M. Gilmore (first day), P. Brobst (second day).

From December 6, 1848, to March 7, 1849 (24 years old), he taught school at Black Creek, Conyngham Valley, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. From April 2, 1849, to July 2, 1849, from July 23, 1849, to October 19, 1849, from November 26, 1849, to January 28, 1850, from January 30, 1850, to April 1, 1850, he taught school in Mifflinsville, Pennsylvania.

He spent the summer of 1850 (25 years old) in Berwick. He considered that he did his first civil engineering with Colonel Mitchell on the Pennsylvania Canal (Susquehanna River) at Berwick and fixed the date about the time of finishing the weighlock at Beach Haven about 1850. Mitchell boarded at the McNair house and wanted Thomas S. McNair to help him in the work. On September 25, 1850, he was teaching school at Chambersburg, Pennsylvania.

From November 5, 1851 (26 years old), to March 20, 1852, he taught a school of forty pupils in District 4, Beach Haven, Salem Township, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, for $16 a month.

From April 19, 1852 (24 years old), to July 17, 1852, from August 2, 1852, to November 4, 1852, from November 22, 1852, to February 2,

THOMAS SPEER McNAIR (1824-1901)
Civil and Mining Engineer

1853, he taught a school of fifty-eight pupils at Berwick for $30 a month. The subjects were: algebra, mensuration, arithmetic, bookkeeping, natural philosophy (Comstock's), history, grammar, geography, reading, and writing.

From March 1, 1853, to May 24, 1853 (28 years old), he taught school at Berwick Academy. From June 9, 1853, to June, 1854, he was rodman on the North Penn Railroad, under W. R. Maffett as principal assistant of the road.

From June 1, 1854 (29 years old), to July 19, 1854, he was rodman on the North Penn Railroad, under Charles Delisle as principal assistant. In 1854, he was levelman for the reconnaissance survey of the Tyrone & Clearfield Railroad, under James E. Montgomery as chief engineer. From November 8, 1854, to March 11, 1858, he was principal assistant on the Upper North Branch (Pennsylvania) Canal, under W. R. Maffet as superintendent and engineer. On December 30, 1854, he was initiated, and on January 1, 1855, raised to the third degree (Master Mason) in Carbon Lodge No. 242, Ancient York Masons, Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania. Later he became master of this lodge. His brother William had joined previously.

From May 6, 1858 (33 years old), to October 12, 1859, he was assistant engineer, with mine surveys, of the Hazleton and Lehigh Luzerne Railroad, under Martin Coryell, resident engineer. On April 6, 1858, he received the highest degree given in the Lilly Holy Royal Arch Chapter No. 181, Mauch Chunk. Sometime later he became presiding officer of this chapter.

On June 13, 1859 (34 years old), he was made a Knight Templar, Crusade Commandery, Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania. Sometime later he became eminent commander of the commandery at Mauch Chunk.

From March 21, 1860 (35 years old), to February 12, 1861, he was engineer-in-chief for Mitchell and Maffet, contractors, Maryland & Delaware Railroad.

On March 8, 1861 (36 years old), he received the highest degree given in Council No. —, Bloomsburg. Later McNair Council at Mauch Chunk was organized and named after him. He became presiding officer of the council either at Bloomsburg or Mauch Chunk. From April 9, 1861, to March 12, 1862, he surveyed for the map of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, under Schooley.

From April 1, 1862, to June 1, 1868 (37 years old), he was chief engineer for the Hazleton and Lehigh Luzerne Railroad and mines.

On October 14, 1864 (39 years old), he was a charter member of Council No. 14 of Luzerne County, No. 530 Union League of America; on September 26, 1864, he became vice-president, and on October 28, 1864, president.

From April 1, 1865 (40 years old), to March 22, 1867, he was chief burgess of Hazleton, Pennsylvania. From November 11, 1865, to November 7, 1868, he was a member of the board of directors, Middle Coal Field Poor District (comprised of lower Luzerne and upper Carbon counties).

On January 11, 1866, he was an organizer of the Hazle Hall Association, and was elected treasurer.*

On August 14, 1866 (41 years old) he married Mary Stevens.

From March 22, 1867 (42 years old), to 1870, he was president of the town council of Hazleton; during that time the first fire engine was purchased, on October 21, 1867.

On February 7, 1868 (43 years old), he was made a Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret (thirty-second degree), Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite Masons, Caldwell Consistory, Bloomsburg. From June 1, 1868, to January 31, 1894, he was resident engineer of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Hazleton division, with mines. On April 14, 1869, he became charter member of the Hazleton Building and Loan Association. On July 16, 1869, he was made a Ghiblemite of the third arch (masonic), composed of Luzerne, Dauphin, Lebanon, Schuylkill, Susquehanna, Wyoming, and York counties in conjunction with Fritz James Evans and John Vallerchamp for Grand Council of Cryptic Masons of Pennsylvania, at Bloomsburg December 27, 1869.

On May 16, 1871 (46 years old), he was an organizer, charter member, and one of the first managers of the American Institute of Mining Engineers.

On April 11, 1873 (48 years old), he applied for membership in the American Society of Civil Engineers.

In 1875 (50 years old), his model inclined standard mine transit was made, which was in William Young & Co.'s exhibit at the Centennial Exposition, Philadelphia, in 1876.†

Beginning December 27, 1875 (51 years old), he was district deputy grand master (masonic) of District No. 25, comprising Carbon and Lehigh counties, and upon petition, he served in the same capacity for Lodge No. 327 of Hazleton at the same time, until December 27, 1882.

For six years, from 1876 (52 years old) to 1881, he was a school director in the Hazleton public schools, and president of the board of directors most of the time.

From 1878 (53 years old) until August, 1883, McNair & Co. were operators of the Harleigh (Pennsylvania) Collieries. On December 30, 1882, he became a member of the Masonic Veterans Association of Pennsylvania.

In 1884 (59 years old) he was appointed real estate agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad. In the same year he was a manager of the American Institute of Mining Engineers for the second time.

On January 1, 1887 (62 years old) he declined re-election to the trusteeship of the First Presbyterian Church, Hazleton. He joined this church January 16, 1887. On March 5, 1887, he was elected corresponding member of Quatuor Coronati No. 2076, of London, England (masonic). On May 13, 1887, the Diamond Water Co. of Hazleton was organized, and on May 14, he was made president.

From March, 1891 (67 years old), to 1893, he was chief engineer of the Jeddo (Pennsylvania) Mine Drainage Tunnel. From June 2, 1892, to November 9, 1893, he was a member of the board of directors, Markle Trust Co., Hazleton, and was vice-president in 1893.

In 1893 (68 years old) he joined the Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and at the same time he joined the Society of the War of 1812.

In 1894 (69 years old) he bought the Ferguson lemon and orange ranch at Glendora, California. On January 31, 1894, he severed connections with the Lehigh Valley Railroad. From February 1, 1894, to July 25, 1901, he was resident engineer for the Union Improvement Co., the Highland Coal Land Co., the Black Creek Improvement Co., and the Cranberry Improvement Co., at Hazleton.

On December 18, 1899, he resigned from the Masonic Veterans Association, which he joined in 1882.

On July 25, 1901 (76 years old) he died from pneumonia at his home in Hazleton.

Thomas S. McNair's civil engineering experience covered that period in American history when canals were the principal transportation carriers, when railroads were used contributory to canals, and, finally, when railroads replaced canals as the chief means of transportation. He thus became connected with the construction of the Pennsylvania Canal in 1850; the Raritan and Passaic

Canal from Easton, Pennsylvania, to Perth Amboy, New Jersey; the North Branch Canal, which, extending from Wilkes Barre to the New York boundary, was subsequently transferred to the Lehigh Valley Railroad and abandoned; the Lehigh Canal; and the Penn Haven (inclined) Plane which connected the railroad with the Lehigh Canal.

His railroad experience included the building of the North Penn Railroad, in 1853, between Bethlehem and Philadelphia; the reconnaissance for the Tyrone & Clearfield Railroad; the construction of the Maryland & Delaware Railroad. He was chief engineer of the Hazleton & Lehigh Luzerne Railroad which was subsequently merged into the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Under his direction the railroad tunnel between Hazleton and Jeddo and the link between Hazleton and Pottsville were constructed.

He was connected with anthracite coal mining in Luzerne County from 1858, mostly with the collieries around Hazleton. However, as an administrator of the estate of W. R. Maffet (with whom he worked for many years) from 1890, he was called upon to look after collieries in the neighborhood of Wilkesbarre. As marks of his ability as a mining engineer remain the Harleigh Drainage Canal and the Jeddo Drainage Tunnel.

His experience in surveying Luzerne County in 1861 and 1862 made him familiar with the territory which afterward served as a basis for his warranty map of the district. This is now a standard of reference.

The necessities of his profession led him to invent the zinc mine lamp, the inclined standard mine transit, and replaceable tips for surveying rods.

Thomas Speer McNair was "a man who wore his own boots," that is, an independent thinker with marked executive ability—a man whose voice was well thought of in council and one who in word and deed portrayed thoroughness, courage, and honesty.

He married Mary Stevens, daughter of Robert Stevens and Ann Birtley. She was born February 7, 1847, at Haswell Colliery, Parish of Easington, County of Durham, England. She died May 16, 1916, from cancer, at Pasadena, California.

The children are:

45. Annie (Anna) Agnes McNair was born May 15, 1867, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. She received the B.A. degree in 1889 from Elmira College, Elmira, New York; the B.L. degree in 1903 from the University of California, Berkeley, California. She taught in Wilmington, Delaware, from September 15, 1890, to April 25, 1892; in Mrs. Hammonds' private school, Hemington, New York from January 2, 1893, to April 1, 1893; in Hazleton Seminary (Mrs. J. C. Jack's); in Hazleton High School; in Covina (California) High School; and in the Pacific Grove (California) High School. She died August 24, 1922, at Los Angeles, California, from apoplexy, and is buried in Glendora, California.
46. Thomas Ferguson McNair was born July 24, 1869, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. He received the B.A. degree in 1891 from Princeton University where he took the undergraduate prize in political economy. He studied law under Judge Gaius Halsey, of Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania. He took the final examination in law and received certificate at Wilkesbarre July 7, 1893, and was city solicitor for Hazleton from 1894 to 1900. On April 8, 1897, he was initiated into the Hazleton Lodge B.P.O.E. (Elks). He died October 4, 1901, at Glendora, from Bright's disease, and is buried in Glendora.
47. Robert Stevens McNair was born December 23, 1871, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania, and died February 10, 1886, at Hazleton, from fracture of the skull.
48. William Righter McNair was born February 24, 1874, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. He received the degree of Ph.G. from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy in 1895; the degree of M.D. from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1899. He came to Glendora, California, in the same year. He married first on July 16, 1907, Ada Maude West. His second wife was Mamie Lea Bryant, who died January 30, 1923, in Los Angeles. He was owner and manager of the McNair Lemon Packing House, Glendora, California; owner and proprietor, beginning February 10, 1904, of the Alost Chemical Co., Glendora; from January 15, 1911, to May 20, 1912, owner and proprietor of the McNair Pharmacy; he was physician and surgeon for the Azusa-Glendora division, Pacific Electric Railway. He took an active part in the incorporation of Glendora, and served as councilman on the first board after its incorporation, from November 10, 1911, to April 15, 1912. He was the first to use disinfectants in the water used to wash citrus fruits and by so doing initiated the saving of thousands of dollars' worth of fruit to the growers.*

On October 2, 1903, he became a Master Mason of Azusa Lodge No. 305, F. & A.M., Azusa, California. On April 1, 1904, he received the Royal Arch degree, Azusa Chapter No. 80, R.A.M. He was constituted a companion of the Illustrious Order of the Red Cross, Commandery, No. 37, K. T., Pomona, California, June 8, 1905; on June 28, 1905, he was given the Order of the Temple, and on June 14, 1906, he was made a Knight of Malta. On September 23, 1905, he became a Noble of Al Malaikah Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Los Angeles. He is a member of the California Sons of the Revolution, Los Angeles.

Since 1900 he has been a successful practicing physician in California. During the Great War he was captain, Medical Corps, U.S.A., stationed at the base hospital, Camp Kearney, near San Diego, California.

49. Jane (Jean) Ferguson McNair was born February 5, 1876, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. She received the A.B. degree from Vassar College in 1897. She became a graduate nurse in 1901 from the Philadelphia General Hospital Training School. From 1905 to 1906 she was head nurse for the Detroit Copper Mining Co., Morenci, Arizona. From 1911 to 1912 she was president of the Glendora Women's Club. She took the oath of office, Reserved Army Nursing Corps, November 14, 1917, and was stationed in active service at Camp Bowie, Fort Worth, Texas, from November 18, 1917, to August 25, 1918.
50. John Calvin McNair was born June 4, 1878, Hazleton, Pennsylvania, and died April 8, 1883, at Hazleton.
51. Donald Wallace MacNair
52. Mary Stevens MacNair
53. Rebecca Sharon MacNair was born August 17, 1884, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. She was graduated in 1903 from the Citrus Union High School, Azusa, California. She received the A.B. degree in 1907 from the University of California. She was a student

29. DAVID HENDERSON MCNAIR (Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]²) was born July 8, 1831, in Hanover Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania, to which his brothers Thomas and William belonged. He married Mary Elizabeth Setzer September 22, 1860, at Weatherly, Carbon County, Pennsylvania. He died July 18, 1881, near Bowie Station, Arizona, and his wife died from pneumonia at Long Beach, California. Children:

55. Thomas Righter McNair was born at Weatherly, Pennsylvania, May 14, 1862. For many years he was cashier in an Omaha bank, and was Nebraska state secretary for the Society of the Sons of the Revolution. On August 13, 1900, he was made a Master Mason, Capitol Lodge No. 3, Omaha, Nebraska; on November 27, 1901, he received the Royal and Select degrees; on December 13, 1904, he received the Super Excellent Master degree, Omaha Council No. 1, R.S. & S.E.M., Omaha; on October 4, 1901, the Illustrious Order of the Red Cross degree; on October 11, 1901, the Order of the Temple and Order of Malta at the Mount Calvary Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar, Omaha; and on December 13, 1901, he became a Shriner at Tangier Temple, Omaha.

56. David Ferguson McNair

31. JAMES SHARON MCNAIR (Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]²) was born October 4, 1838, at Foundryville, Columbia County Pennsylvania. He was a civil and mining engineer, and for many years was also interested in a drugstore in Hazleton. He was first lieutenant, Company G, Thirty-second Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers in 1863, and was head of the G.A.R. post at Hazleton. He was a Knight Templar, and served as eminent commander of his commandry. On December 10, 1872, he married Rebecca Comley Vincent, of Hazleton, at Jeansville, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. He died from paralysis January 10, 1899, at Hazleton, and is buried there. They had one child:

57. Comley Vincent McNair was born March 27, 1876, and died March 8, 1881

FOURTH GENERATION

37. ROBERT MCNAIR (William [18]³ William [5]² Thomas [1]¹) was born April 14, 1867. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias of Marion, Indiana. He married on November 22, 1866, Fannie Walker, daughter of Daniel and Amanda Walker, of Piqua, Ohio. They live at 223 North E Street, Marion, Indiana. Children:

58. Bernice Carrie McNair was born in Marion, Indiana, June 18, 1894. On April 2, 1920, she was married to Edwin W. Carmichael and they have one child, Ruth Elizabeth Carmichael, born May 20, 1921.

59. Virgil Donald McNair was born December 1, 1900

42. EUPHEMIA RIGHTER (Jane F. McNair [25]³ Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]¹) was married to Arthur P. Wood, of Omaha, Nebraska. They had three children:

60. William Righter Wood married ———
 61. Jane McNair Wood (deceased)
 62. Mary Lewis Wood

43. THOMAS MCNAIR RIGHTER* (Jane F. McNair [25]³ Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]¹) was born January 2, 1847, in Berwick, Pennsylvania. While but a youth his family moved from Berwick to Mauch Chunk, Pennsylvania, where he was educated in the public schools. At the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Righter was but fifteen years old. He desired to enlist with the Union Army but was too young to be accepted. However, he secured a position on a mail train, taking the place of an older man who had gone into military service. A short time later he joined a survey corps of the Jersey Central Railroad, later going into the service of the Upper Lehigh under Judge Leisenring. He became superintendent of the Sandy Run Colliery a few years later.

* Account taken from the Mount Carmel Daily News, July 13, 1918.

In 1882 he removed to Mount Carmel taking residence at the homestead on South Oak Street, and associating himself with the operation at the east of this borough, the colliery being conducted under the corporation name of T. M. Righter & Co., and for years was one of the largest coal industries in this section.

He was one of the founders of the Mount Carmel Water Co., a pioneer promoter of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., and the organizer of the Union National Bank, of which he was president at the time of his death.

It was to Mr. Righter that the Shamokin and Mount Carmel Transit Company owes its existence, he being associated with G. M. Smith in the foundation of the road. When that company constructed the line from Centralia to Ashland about 1908, Mr. Righter mapped out the route it was to follow and did the preliminary engineering work.

In every enterprise that had its inception in the region within the past quarter of a century, Mr. Righter was prominently identified. When West Virginia coal lands came to the attention of local investors a few years ago, Mr. Righter saw the possibilities of the southern coal areas and became a heavy buyer, the land being worked later under companies in which he was a dominant figure. Mr. Righter was a director in the Midvalley Coal Co., and was copartner in the Oak Hill Coal Co.

Although surrounded with innumerable business duties, as the result of his wide connection with coal, banking, and land enterprises, Mr. Righter found time to affiliate himself with and take active interest in many fraternal organizations. He was a member of the Union League of Philadelphia, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, in addition to being past master of Hazleton Lodge No. 377, F. & A.M., Hazleton Chapter, R.A.M., past commander of Council No. 23, Knights Templar, Mauch Chunk. His activities went beyond business and fraternal limits and extended to religious and philanthropic circles. A charter member of the Presbyterian church, Mr. Righter was at the fore in everything that had for its object the good of his religious community. For many years a member of the Board of Trustees of the Fountain Springs Hospital, he generously gave his time to that institution and won the admiration and respect of its authorities by his constant interest in its welfare. Socially, Mr. Righter was connected with the Fountain Springs Country Club, being one of the originators of the idea of establishing that organization. He worked on numerous committees during the Great War, and in every instance proved his practical love for the nation that in the Civil War he would have fought for. He used his driving energy in the Red Cross, Liberty Loan, Y.M.C.A., and K. of C. campaigns.

He married twice: his first wife was Gertrude Leisenring, of Upper Lehigh, Pennsylvania. She died August 5, 1901. His second wife was Renée Mitchell. Thomas Righter died from paralysis July 12, 1918, at Mount Carmel, Pennsylvania, and is buried at Mauch Chunk. Thomas Righter and Gertrude Leisenring had two children:

- 63. Walter Leisenring Righter married
- 64. Jane Righter

The children of Thomas Righter and Renée Mitchell are:

- 65. Thomas McNair Righter, Jr.
- 66. Margaret Righter
- 67. Constance Righter
- 68. Gertrude Righter

51. DONALD WALLACE MACNAIR (Thomas [27]³ Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]²) was born September 6, 1880, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. He was educated at the Bloomsburg (Pennsylvania) State Normal School, 1898-99; at the Princeton Preparatory School, Princeton, New Jersey, 1901-2; and at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, 1902-7. He became a Master Mason of the Azusa Lodge No. 305 F. & A.M., September 9, 1904, and was demitted to Friendship Lodge No. 210, San Jose, California. He is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, No. 428, Saratoga, California. From October, 1907, to March, 1914, he farmed in Saratoga, Santa Clara County, California; from June, 1914, to December, 1914, in Santa Cruz; and from March, 1915, to November, 1922, in Napa. He was state dairy inspector for California. On December 1, 1907, he was married at Saratoga, California, by Rev. Edwin S. Williams, to Virginia Davis Moser, of Washington, D.C. She is the daughter of Rev. Jacobs Moser and Sarah Elizabeth Virginia Scherer and was born November 16, 1878, at Salem, Roanoke County, Virginia. Children:

69. Mary Elizabeth MacNair was born March 27, 1909, at Saratoga, California

70. Thomas Kocher MacNair was born November 23, 1910, at San Jose, California

52. MARY STEVENS MACNAIR (Thomas [27]³ Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]¹) was born August 23, 1882, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. She was married on December 27, 1906, to Nevin Elwell Funk, son of Nevin U. Funk and Mary Elwell, of Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania. Children: .

71. Jean Ferguson Funk was born May 8, 1915

72. Henry Elwell Funk, II, was born March 22, 1917

54. JAMES BIRTLEY MCNAIR (Thomas [27]³ Thomas [9]² Thomas [1]¹) was born March 18, 1889, at Hazleton, Pennsylvania. He arrived at Glendora, California, with his mother May 11, 1902. He was graduated from the Azusa (California) Grammar School, June, 1904. He attended the Citrus Union High School, of Azusa, for several years, then spent a year at Pomona College Preparatory School, Claremont, California, and finally returned to Citrus Union High School for several months previous to graduation from there in 1911. Previous to entering the University of California in 1913 he attended Pomona College for a year and a half. He received the A.B. degree from the University of California May 16, 1916, and the A.M. degree in biological chemistry in 1917. From January to June, 1918, he was a student in the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; and from October 1, 1922, to date a graduate student in the University of Chicago.

In 1915 he was assistant in zymology under Professor William V. Cruess, University of California; in 1916, assistant in biological chemistry under Professor T. Brailsford Robertson and Dr. C. B. Bennett, University of California; from September 1, 1917, to January 1, 1918, assistant research chemist under Professor Samuel B. Doten, Nevada Agricultural Experiment Station, Reno, Nevada;* from April 26, 1919, to September 1, 1919, assistant chemist under Edward M. Chace, Citrus By-Product Laboratory, Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, Los Angeles; from February 21, 1920, to May 15, 1920, chemist-in-charge, Chemical Economy Co., Los Angeles; from May 22, 1920, to December 15, 1921, junior biological chemist under S. Henry Ayres and Lore A. Rogers, Bureau of Animal Industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.; from December 16, 1921, to April 15, 1922, assistant in the Fisheries Food Laboratory, Bureau of Fisheries, Washington, D.C.; from May 3, 1922, to October 1, 1922, assistant biological chemist, Bureau of Internal Revenue, Treasury Department, Chicago, Illinois.

On January 11, 1912, he was made a Master Mason, Glendora Lodge, F. & A.M. No. 404, Glendora, California; on May 18, 1918, he received the thirty-second degree, Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret, Philadelphia Consistory, Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite Masons, Philadelphia; on November 29, 1920, he was made a Noble of Almas Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, Washington, D.C.

On August 15, 1917, he applied for appointment, with M. Raines Miller, to the Sanitary Officers Corps, U.S.A., at San Francisco, as a chemist. He passed the physical examination at 89 Battery Street on the morning of the same date, and on August 16, 1917, left the application with Major Bryant, but it was never heard from. On June 22, 1918, he enlisted in Philadelphia as a private in the Medical Enlisted Reserve Corps, stationed at Philadelphia and Baltimore, Maryland, from which he was honorably discharged at Governor's Island, New York, April 9, 1919. On November 4, 1919, he was appointed first lieutenant, Quartermaster Section, Officers Reserve Corps, U.S.A. He qualified for appointment as first lieutenant in the Sanitary Officers Reserve Corps and received the appointment April 26, 1921, to date from November 4, 1919. On June 6, 1922, he was appointed first lieutenant, Chemical Warfare Officers Reserve Corps to rank from November 4, 1919, and on January 26, 1923, he was promoted to a captaincy in the same corps.

From 1917 to 1918 he was a member of the American Chemical Society; from June 28, 1919, to date, an associate member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers; from October 28, 1920, to date, a member of the Society of American Bacteriologists; from November 24, 1920, to date, a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; from November 28, 1920, to date, a member of the Botanical Society of America. On November 28, 1922, he was elected a member of the society of Sigma Xi, Chicago Chapter.

On July 25, 1917, he married Blanche Evelyn Sherer, a daughter of Robert Sherer and ——— Stewart, and grand niece of President Rudolph (?) Scherer of Switzerland. She was born September 6, 1891, at Compton, California. A divorce was granted James B. McNair, on the grounds of desertion, at Alexandria, Virginia, December 1, 1921. There is one child:

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM McNEAR*

1. WILLIAM McNEAR came to this country in 1730 with his two brothers, John and Thomas, one of whom settled in Maine and the other in Nova Scotia. William McNear settled in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He had at least one son:

2. Andrew McNear

SECOND GENERATION

2. ANDREW McNEAR (William [1]¹) migrated to Antrim Township, Franklin County, Pennsylvania. The records of John Harris Ferry, the founder of Harrisburg, show that Andrew McNear crossed the Susquehanna as early as 1754, his possessions and the toll which he paid being noted. Andrew McNear thenceforth led the life of a farmer in Antrim Township. He was a member of the Presbyterian church. The names of his wife and children have not been preserved, with the exception of the youngest of the family:

3. Samuel McNear

THIRD GENERATION

3. SAMUEL McNEAR (Andrew [2]² William [1]¹) was born in Antrim Township, and engaged in farming until about the year 1840, when he migrated to West Virginia and engaged in boating on the Mississippi River, plying between Pittsburgh and New Orleans. On one of his trips in 1842, he, with two others, went ashore from their large vessel near Vicksburg, Mississippi, in a small boat which, in returning, was capsized. Samuel McNear, being the only one of the three who could not swim, was drowned. He was then living at Short Creek, Brook County, West Virginia.

He married Elizabeth (Banks) Jones, widow of Thomas Jones. She was a native of Franklin County, and was of Swedish extraction. By her first marriage she had the following children: Edward Jones and Ruth Jones. After the death of Samuel McNair she was married to Reuben R. Moody. By this marriage she had three children: Emma J. Moody, James J. Moody, and John Moody. She died about 1888, in Steelton, Pennsylvania, at the age of 87, at the home of her son Benjamin F. McNair, and is buried at Marysville, Perry County, Pennsylvania.

The children of Samuel McNair and Elizabeth Jones are:

4. George McNear was born in 1833, and died in 1857
5. Catherine McNear was married to Elijah Hoggatt, of Salem, Henry County, Iowa
6. Jesse McNear lived in Wellsbury, West Virginia
7. Daniel McNear lived in Ripley, Jackson County, West Virginia
8. Rebecca McNear was married to William Rose, of Salesville, Ohio
9. Benjamin Franklin McNear

FOURTH GENERATION

9. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN MCNEAR (Samuel [3]³ Andrew [2]² William [1]¹) was born August 18, 1842, at Warrenton, Belmont County, Ohio, and received a common school education. At the age of twelve years he was bound to James M. Warden, of Wheeling, Virginia, with whom he was to remain, according to the agreement, until attaining his majority. In 1862, failure in business nullified the contract, and he found employment with the Hempfield Railroad Company, now a branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, being first employed as a track-hand and in the course of time working his way up to the position of fireman. His home was with a widow named Brown in West Alexander, Washington County, Pennsylvania. He was serving in this capacity at the outbreak of the Civil War, and on August 2, 1862, enlisted in Company C, One Hundred Fortieth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, Brady Infantry, Captain David Acheson commanding. He was mustered in August 22, 1862, at Camp Howe, Pittsburgh, and served three years, being mustered out August 19, 1865, three months after the mustering out of his regiment which occurred in May, 1865. Among the engagements in which he participated were Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, where he was wounded "in the wheatfield" July 2, 1863, being shot through the right hip.

He was taken to the Jarvis Hospital, Baltimore, where he remained for three months, being then removed to the Camden Street Hospital, to which he was confined for eight months. He then served four months in special order service under General Lew Wallace, after which he was for two months orderly to medical inspector under Colonel Johnson, Eighth Army Corps, and the remainder of the time, preceding his discharge, he did duty at the McKim Hospital, Baltimore. The military services rendered by Benjamin McNear are mentioned in Bate's History of the Civil War, his name being therein erroneously given as Franklin B. McNerny. August 20, 1865, Mr. McNear accepted a position with the Northern Central Railroad Co., taking up the trade of boilermaking. January 25, 1869, he was made foreman of the boiler works at Marysville, Pennsylvania, which position he held until 1884. In that year he moved to Steelton, became a planer in the frog and switch department of the Pennsylvania Steel Co., and was recently made assistant foreman of that department, a position which he still (1907) retains.

He belongs to Post No. 351, Grand Army Republic, the Young Men's Christian Association, and the Independent Order Odd Fellows, No. 184, of Steelton, being one of the charter members and organizers of that lodge. He also belongs to the Knights of Pythias, No. 194, of Steelton, and was the founder of that order at Steelton, where he has taken great interest in the lodge. He is a member of the Church of God, and in 1884 served on the building committee appointed to superintend the erection of the first church edifice. He also contributed to the building of the new church in 1895. For eight years he held the office of deacon, and is now (1907) serving his sixth year as elder. For two years he was superintendent of the Main Street Sunday School, and is now superintendent of the East End Sunday School, Church of God, Front Street, near Chambers.

He married, December 24, 1864, Deborah V. Haslett, born March 20, 1840, in Baltimore, Maryland, daughter of Thomas and Deborah Haslett. Their children are:

10. Mary V. McNear

11. Hannah McNear was born October 24, 1866, and died February 28, 1889

12. Benjamin Franklin McNear
13. Ellen May McNear was born June 9, 1872, and died October 11, 1880
14. William H. McNear was born September 2, 1874. He died May 21, 1902, at Steelton, Pennsylvania, and is buried there.
15. Lucy C. McNear was born August 13, 1876, and died in 1882

Deborah Haslett McNear died September 25, 1878, at Marysville, Pennsylvania, and is buried there. On February 22, 1880, Benjamin McNear married Malinda C. Keim, daughter of William and Mary A. Keim. She was born April 10, 1859, in Perry County, Pennsylvania. Children:

16. Anna G. McNear
17. Arthur Garfield McNear was born May 14, 1883. He is (1907) a planer for the Pennsylvania Steel Co., a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.
18. Harry K. McNear was born June 14, 1886. He is (1907) a planer for the Pennsylvania Steel Co. He married Anna McClane.
19. Jesse Banks McNear was born October 2, 1888
20. Ruth McNear was born October 12, 1893, and died June 12, 1896
21. C. Esther McNear was born November 11, 1896

FIFTH GENERATION

10. MARY V. MCNEAR (Benjamin Franklin [9]⁴ Samuel [3]³ Andrew [2]² William [1]¹) was born October 8, 1865. She was married to George M. Houdeshell. Children:

22. Edna Houdeshell
23. Harry Houdeshell
24. Nellie Houdeshell
25. Archie Houdeshell
26. LeRoy Houdeshell
27. ——— Houdeshell died in infancy

12. BENJAMIN FRANKLIN MCNEAR (Benjamin Franklin [9]⁴ Samuel [3]³ Andrew [2]² William [1]¹) was born February 16, 1870, at Marysville, Perry County, Pennsylvania. He attended the schools of Marysville and Steelton, whither his parents moved in 1884 when he was fourteen years old. At the age of sixteen he entered the service of the Pennsylvania Steel Co., beginning as water boy and working his way up to the position of planer in the machine shop, a place which he held for eighteen years. April 1, 1903, he resigned and purchased the general grocery business of Thomas Behney, of Steelton, and has since conducted a flourishing trade. In 1905 he was elected a member of the school board to serve until 1907, and is (1907) on the finance and supply committee of that body. He belongs to the Independent Order Odd Fellows, No. 184, and the Royal Arcanum, No. 933. In politics he is a Republican. He is a member of the Church of God, in which he holds the office of elder and also serves as superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday school.

On February 21, 1891, he married Nellie Waidley, Rev. W. J. Weidenhamer officiating. She was born October 27, 1872, at Goldsboro, Pennsylvania, and is a daughter of Jacob Waidley and Jennie Kester. Jacob Waidley was born September 12, 1835, in York County, Pennsylvania, was reared on the farm and about twenty-five years ago went to Steelton, where he worked as a planer for the Pennsylvania Steel Co. for seventeen years. Before going to Steelton he conducted a mercantile business at Goldsboro, York County, for a number of years. Jacob K. Waidley during the Civil War enlisted in that famous Pennsylvania cavalry regiment, the Ninth Pennsylvania, known as the "Lochiel." He served with this regiment during his term of service and participated in their many battles, attaining the rank of corporal. Since 1903 he has resided at the Soldiers' Home, Erie, Pennsylvania. He is a member of the Grand Army Republic. Jennie Kester was born in Goldsboro, and is the daughter of George W. Kester and Elizabeth Shock.

The children of Benjamin Franklin McNear and Nellie Waidley are:

28. Alfred McNear was born November 15, 1892, in Steelton
29. Edgar McNear was born November 3, 1894, in Steelton

16. ANNA G. MCNEAR (Benjamin Franklin [9]⁴ Samuel [3]³ Andrew [2]² William [1]¹) was born December 12, 1880. She was married to Robert Shultz, of Steelton, and they have one child:

30. Helen Lucile Shultz

DESCENDANTS OF DAVID McNAIR AND NANCY SMITH*

1. DAVID McNAIR† was born at Lough-a-brin, near Castle Bann, Ulster, Ireland, in 1775. His father was Robert McNair who was born in Scotland and, being skilled in the art of fencing, drilled cavalry men in swordsmanship in the service of the Crown. Later he was a weaver and woolen manufacturer. David McNair's grandfather was William McNair who was a surgeon and practiced in Edinburgh, Scotland, and Ulster.

When David was nine years old he ran away from home, and with the aid of friends took ship at the port of Londonderry-Moville. He landed in Philadelphia and then went to a little settlement of Ulster Presbyterian families. Here, in due time, he married Nancy Smith of a Scotch-Irish family. By the hardest toil they made a farm and a home in this wilderness. When the War of 1812 broke out and Commodore Perry was sent to build a fleet in Erie Harbor, David McNair entered into the building of ships. At the time Perry sent his famous message to Washington, he was a volunteer in the army of General William Henry Harrison on the frontier to wrest back the Northwest Territory lost by the surrender of Hull at Detroit.

David McNair died in Erie County, Pennsylvania, in 1852. The highland on which he built his cabin in Venango Township is still called McNair Hill.

* Data received from Rush McNair (56) March 27, 1923, too late for insertion in its proper alphabetical order. Reference used: Kane County, Illinois, Commemorative Record, Biographies, Portraits (Chicago: Beers, Leggett & Co., 1888).

† Tradition in this family has given the origin of the name "McNair" thus: An old Highlander, Mac, had three sons. One married and moved far away. Old Mac called him "McFar." The second son made his home near by, and he called him, "Mac Near." The third founded his family somewhere between his brothers. He was called "McNair."

Another story is that a rocky promontory, jutting out into the sea from the Highlands, had the outline of a human nose. It was given the Latin name Nares, "the nose." The men of this mountain, being generously marked by nature in the size of the nose, appropriately became the McNares.

The sons of David McNair and Nancy Smith were all large, broad-shouldered, powerful men, with black hair and dark-blue eyes. David, William, John, Samuel, and Harvey were five feet, nine inches, and Thomas and Robert were six feet tall. The daughters were all very comely, especially Mary Jane who was considered a beauty.

13. SAMUEL MCNAIR (David [1]^t) was born in Erie County, Pennsylvania, February 8, 1823. He received the M.D. degree from Rush Medical College in 1859, and practiced in Kane County, Illinois. He was the first to do major surgical operations in that section of Illinois.

The following is an anecdote of early Illinois days and Samuel McNair as given by Rush McNair:

In the days of the Illinois pioneers, fist fights were looked upon as honorable contentions. Men would go to it with bare knuckles for a K.O., shake hands, and be good friends forever after. In the early fifties, the local champion of western Kane and eastern DeKalb counties was one Underwood. However, he had, or was given the idea, that he had not the right to so term himself until he had whipped Sam McNair. I am not just sure how far my father went out of his way to avoid the conflict, but he knew the battle was inevitable and he methodically thought out his tactics. At last, the day having come, and an appreciative audience gathered, and Underwood having at the bar drowned certain scruples he had at attacking a man of whom he really thought a great deal, sought the quarrel. "Doc Sam" was sitting in a chair tilted back against the tavern wall, reading. Up comes Underwood, turning loose a dirty tongue and shaking his fists in the face of his proposed victim. Finally the champion said the wrong thing just rightly. Underwood had not noted nor cared that the color had left McNair's face and the blue eyes had become a steel gray. My father got up very deliberately, folded his newspaper neatly, turned and laid it nicely on his chair; then there was a whirling body, arms and legs in the air all too quick to be seen, a crash—and Underwood had disappeared. Volunteers from the audience carried him out of the tavern office into which he had been catapulted through the window, carrying the sash with him. But Underwood was not satisfied and claimed that Doc Sam whipped him before he had begun to fight, and a few months later staged a comeback. This combat was an exact duplicate of the first, except that Underwood went through the same window from within outwards. Later when asked what made his black and blue "lamps" he said he had "taken two of Doc Sam's blue pills."

Samuel McNair married Anne Osburn. She was born December 15, 1831, at Chautauqua, New York. Samuel died June 30, 1898.

55. Rock McNair, twin of Rush, was born July 1, 1860. He died when eleven years old, April 20, 1872.

McNAIRS OF SOUTH CAROLINA

DESCENDANTS OF DUNCAN McNAIR AND SUSAN GREER LA COSTE*

About 1815 seven brothers came from Dumbarton Rock (near Ayre), Scotland, and settled in Pennsylvania. They were Duncan; John, Alexander (both killed in a runaway accident); Neil (dead); Edmund (a doctor in South Carolina); Sandy (murdered by a negro; has a daughter living in Selma, Alabama); and Douglas.

1. DUNCAN McNAIR was born in 1800. He lived at White-shore, North Carolina, for a time, and then moved to Cheraw, South Carolina. He was a merchant and cotton planter; he owned a great many negroes, and was much thought of and highly respected. He married Susan Greer la Coste, of Belfast, Ireland. When 18 years old she was married to William la Coste who only lived five months after the marriage. When she was twenty she was married to Duncan McNair. Children:

2. Edmund McNair was killed in 1861 in the Civil War, at the age of twenty-three
3. Eugenia Michell McNair was born in 1838. She was married to William Coachman Vereen. Their only child died in 1877, when forty years old. A nephew, William McGill, is in Georgetown, South Carolina.
4. Mary la Coste McNair was born in 1840. She was married to Hugh H. Wilson, Sumter County, South Carolina.
5. Clara McNair was born in 1842, and died in 1876
6. John Taylor McNair
7. William Henry McNair married Jessie Avery, daughter of Colonel William Avery, of Rockhill. William McNair died from appendicitis in 1888. Mrs. McNair is living in Norfolk, Virginia.
8. James McNair died from typhoid fever in 1890
9. Frank McNair is dead
